Congressmen Threaten to Fight Bill Asking $800,000,000 For Navy Unless Given More Assurance Against Foreign Tie-Up In Crises; Roosevelt Speech Recalled.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Dr. Charles A. Beard told the house naval affairs committee today that President Roosevelt's "quarantine," policy enunciated in his Chicago speech, calls for big battleships "to be used in aggressive warfare in the Far Pacific or the Far Atlantic."

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Congressional isolationists threatened today to fight the $800,000,000 naval bill until the administration clarifies its foreign policy on collective international action to maintain peace.

Both Democrats and Republicans joined in a demand for further assurances against entanglement in a foreign conflict despite the general approval with which congress received the statement of Secretary of State Cordell Hull that the United States has no alliance or naval understanding with a foreign power.

The fire of the isolationists was directed particularly at President Roosevelt's attitude toward future international crises as judged in relation to his speech last September at Chicago when he indicated that "quarantine" might be necessary against wrong-doing nations.

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) promised "further exploration" of the attitude of the administration on collective security action.

Sen. Homer T. Bone (D., Wash.) usually an ardent New Deal supporter, demanded a "restatement" of foreign policy of the United States in the light of recent developments.

Sen. Gerald P. Nye (R., N. D.) charged the administration already had adopted a new foreign policy which could be explained only as preparation for aggressive warfare abroad.

"I say emphatically that the big navy bill means a new foreign policy already has been adopted," Nye said "There is only one possible explanation for it and that is that it is preparation for an aggressive war.

Holds Defense Adequate.

"Our navy is now large enough for defense. A bigger navy can mean only that the adminstration contemplates sending our soldiers abroad to another war—that again we would get into other people's wars. It would necessarily be a war of aggression if it is in a foreign land."

Nye said that the congressional fight against a big navy was "building up rapidly" and that it would be fought mainly on the thesis advanced by Sen. Robert M. La Follette, P., Wis., that funds proposed for naval building should go for economic needs at home.

Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., and Chairman Key Pittman, D., Nev., of the foreign relations committee, took the position that Hull's statement had clarified the rumors of an alliance with Great Britain and had removed the main obstacles from the path of the navy bill.

"It is not fair," Barkley said, "to ask the secretary to explain or state further what the United States position would be in event of a crisis because world developments are too rapid to permit a reply to such a proposition I do not see that the Hull statement is in any way inconsistent with the president's Chicago speech in which he merely discussed the possible attitude of this government."

Vandenberg, however, insisted that further clarification of the president's attitude was essential.

"The secretary of state very frankly and commendably stated the facts," Vandenberg said. "But that does not explain what the president may do in the future and it doesn't clarify his Chicago speech in regard to quarantining wrong-doing nations."

Vandenberg said there was no question that the demand for clarification would be raised but

Tokyo Ready To Answer Naval Arms Request of Three Powers

(By United Press)

TOKYO—The government was reported today to be ready to reply to American, British and French notes asking reassurances as to Japan's naval building program.

Prince Fumimaro Konoye, the premier, conferred with Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, navy minister, and newspapers reported that the premier approved, subject to possible changes in phraseology, a draft reply which naval experts had formulated. It was forecast that the cabinet would consider the reply at a meeting Thursday or Saturday and that then the notes would probably be forwarded to Washington, London and Paris.

There were reports that in her reply, Japan would say that she was not obligated to notify foreign powers regarding her building plans but at the same time would offer to participate in a disarmament conference provided that the question of total warship strength was considered. (Japan withdrew from the 1936 conference at London because she could not get American and British negotiators to grant her equality of strength in principle).

It was reported also that the government would make a public statement in connection with the reply, asserting that the inquiries as to its plans were unjustified.

The Domei news agency, whose sources of information in such circumstances are frequently excellent, asserted that the Japanese reply probably would be dispatched Friday, and that a public statement of Japan's naval policy probably would be made at the same time.

Japan's general policy is, briefly, that she is building warships for her own protection only and that she adheres to the principle of non-menace and non-aggression as concerns other countries.

U. S. Secretly Assured of Aid From Britain, London Hears

(By International News Service)

LONDON—With discussion of trans-atlantic co-operation at white heat, Prof. Gilbert Murray, famous internationalist of Oxford university, created a sensation today with the declaration that Britain has secretly assured the United States government of support in any action America may take in the Far East.

Prof. Murray indicated, however, that Britain's stand was altogether one-sided and voluntary—and that it conflicted in no way with the denials in Washington that any understanding existed between the two countries.

"I have reason to believe that we have given the American government the assurance that we are ready at once to support them in any action they may take regarding the Japanese invasion of China," said Murray.

Dr. Murray has been chairman of the League of Nations union since 1923 and is president of the international committee for intellectual co-operation. He was an instructor at Harvard university in 1926.

With America at her side in the Orient, said Murray, speaking before the National Liberal club, Britain is ready "to face any risk."

The "trouble" with Britain's assurance, he said, "is that it was a confidential communication by the government.

"But most people here don't know about it, and the great American public doesn't know it and doesn't believe it."

Murray strongly urged the British government openly to condemn Japan's campaign in China.

County Relief Costs Hit 3-Year High

COMMISSION ACTS AGAIN TO CUT EXPENSES

Increases Investigating Staff as Report Shows January Bills Total $20,000.

CLOSER CHECK PLANNED

Funds Exhausted, Officials Say Only $10,000 Available to Pay Debt.

With the county's relief demands showing no signs of slackening after reaching a three-year high last month, county commissioners today had renewed their attempts to cut the expense of caring for the needy.

The January report submitted to County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe by Earl A. Nist, relief director, showed total expenses last month of nearly $20,000, the highest since the county and state took over the relief burden in December, 1935.

Little Help In Sight.

Last month's bills represent the county's total relief debt, but the relief fund is exhausted and there is little to indicate the county will have more than $10,000 for paying the debt, Wolfe explained.

Acting in the belief that it will be economy in the end to increase administration costs to provide a closer check on relief applicants, commissioners have boosted the investigating staff to six at the relief headquarters on Orange street.

Bigger Staff Temporary.

They added that they expect the larger staff of investigators to be needed only during the winter months and that costs will be cut with the arrival of spring and possible improved industrial conditions

Relief Director Nist, appointed last month by commissioners with instructions to cut the relief costs, said he would submit a report of the relief situation to commissioners today or Thursday, showing about 1,200 families re-

DROPS FIGHT

Sandusky Ends 6-Year Effort to Build Muny Light Plant.

SANDUSKY—(INS)—This city today abandoned its six-year fight to build a municipal light plant, a fight that resulted in a complete change of city officials three years ago.

City officials announced they will not contest the ruling of the court of appeals at Toledo that a $1,400,000 bond issue voted in 1933 to finance the light plant was illegal.

The court's decision was based upon the provision in the city charter requiring that plans and specifications must be complete before bonds may be sold for any public improvement.

Efforts to amend the city charter to make preliminary plans acceptable failed at a special election last August. City Solicitor C. E. Moyer pointed out in announcing the case will not be carried further.

COVINGTON, Ky. — (U.P.) — A baby girl, weighing one pound and 14 ounces, was being kept alive and fed with an eye dropper in the new incubator room at St. Elizabeth hospital here, hospital attaches revealed today.

The baby, born prematurely to Mrs. Witt Scott at her home here Saturday, was brought to the hospital by Dr. N. A. Jett, Covington physician, who described the baby as "normal in every respect."

POLICY WRITER FOUND GUILTY

Willard Man, Picked Up Here In Numbers Racket, to 'Sit Out' $25 Fine.

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch "hit" the numbers today but the "house" failed to pay off, and as the result an accused policy number writer was "sitting out" a $25 fine in city jail.

Henry Frye, 48, colored, of Willard, arraigned in municipal court on a charge of selling tickets on a scheme of chance, pleaded not guilty, but was convicted and fined $25 and costs.

Detectives Lee J. Remy and Oscar Krupp testified that they arrested Frye at East Fourth and Diamond streets after he had stepped from a Willard bus.

In his possession, they said they found two numbers books and the day's collection of $11 that corresponded to the amount "written."

Frye told the police that he worked the numbers game in Willard and came here daily to turn the collections over to a "house" which he would not disclose, that was operating here.

WANTS MUSIC ON DEATH DAY

Condemned Man May Get Plea For Swing Tunes.

OSSINING, N. Y.—(AP)—In the death-house at Sing Sing, Charles J. Brown, 30, colored of Ellenville, N. Y., wants to walk to the electric chair to the hot throb of swing music.

He may get his bizarre final request, Warden Lewis E Lawes said today, although ordinarily the bleak corridors of "murderers' row" are silent on the day of an execution.

Lawes said that, according to custom, Brown, whose execution is set for Feb. 24, would spend his last 24 hours in a pre-execution cell entirely apart from the death house with its radio equipment.

"However, if he wants some music, we can give him a portable phonograph in his pre-execution room," the warden said.

Boy Beats 5,000 Girls At Art of Making Dresses

He Can Make Suits for Men, Too, and May Make Career Out of His Skill at Designing Clothes.

(News-Journal Special)

SEYMOUR, Ia.—A 16-year-old farm boy stands victorious in the "no man's land" of a nationwide dressmaking contest.

The only boy entrant in a high school contest that attracted 5,000 girl dressmakers, Jack Harbert of Seymour walked off with first prize locally and went on to win a special award in New York.

Jack, a senior in high school here, is looked upon as the final authority in all matters of dress by the faculty and student body alike. Now he's on his way to bigger things, and the folk back home who have made him their unofficial stylist may soon be able to see the stars wearing his creations at the Main street movie house.

Makes Suits for Himself.

Jack is full of plans for college and a dress designing career after that. He might be a man's tailor, having made two suits for himself.

The prize-winning dress, which he made for his pretty teacher, Miss Myrtle Reynolds, isn't his first venture into the world of sartorial creation. He's made his mother several dresses and does most of her sewing.

The only reason he hasn't gone out for athletics is that his heart isn't strong enough to enable him to enter competitive sports. He's an ardent fan, though, and a real boy through and through.

Two years ago he entered the advance sewing class, the only boy in the history of the high school to have done so. His skill was immediately apparent. He plays the baritone horn in the school band, sings in the glee club, and takes part in dramatics.

FINAL DRIVE

House Leaders Pressing For OK of Welfare Levy Bill.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—House leaders planned to make a final attempt today to pass the Hesse bill lowering the 1938 vote requirement for approval of special local statutory welfare levies from 65 per cent to 55 per cent.

The measure was to be brought up in the house today along with the two substitute relief bills introduced for the administration in place of those the governor vetoed. The substitute measure provides for a relief director, establishes regulations for granting of relief and appropriates $50,000 to the relief director's office.

They are identical with the bills disapproved by the executive except for deletion of the prohibition against affording relief for aliens; a clause creating a relief board of appeals; and a section interpreted by the governor as requiring publication of relief clients' names.

LAUNCH 'BOOM'

Michigan Republicans Boosting Vandenberg For President.

DETROIT—(INS)—A "Vandenberg for President" boom was being launched by the Michigan G. O. P. today. At a banquet of 2,200 Republicans last night, former governor Alex J. Groesbeck said "we should not wait for U. S. Senator Arthur Vandenberg to become a candidate; we should say to the nation that we have a candidate for consideration two years hence."

BOSTON —(U.P.)— Accidental drowning caused the death of Frederick William Burgess, 22, of Cincinnati, O., Harvard law school student whose body was recovered from Charles river basin Sunday, Medical-Examiner William J. Brickley said today.

Finding of the youth's body ended a three-month nation-wide search by federal agents and local police. Young Burgess disappeared from his Harvard dormitory last Nov. 13.

TOLEDO—(U.P.)—Trapped in a smoke-filled apartment today, Mrs. Rose Daniels, 26, threw her four-year-old daughter out of a second story window into the arms of neighbors and then jumped herself.

Neither the mother nor the baby were injured. Smoke from the fire forced 13 families into the drizzling rain.

FIRE SCARE AT THEATER

Ohio Brass To Leave Office Held By Frank Black Vacant

The post held in the Ohio Brass company by the late Frank B. Black, that of chairman of the board, will remain permanently vacant, it developed yesterday at the close of the annual meeting of directors of the company.

Announcement was made after the meeting that the annual stockholders meeting had been held on Monday in Jersey City, N. J., (the state in which the company is chartered) and the company by-laws changed so that the office of chairman of the board is done away with. Mr. Black, who founded the company in 1888, and who died last Dec. 19, is the only person to have held the post.

He became chairman in 1928, and at that time C. K. King who had been associated with Mr. Black in building up the company, was elevated to the presidency.

Meeting at the company's offices here yesterday, the directors left his place on the board vacant as they did that of Robert J. Deneen, who died Dec. 12. Mr. Deneen had been a company vice president, in charge of the Chicago district, since 1928.

Resolutions in memory of both Mr. Black and Mr. Deneen were adopted at yesterday's meeting.

Of Mr. Black, his associates said: "His courageous and indomitable spirit carried a little business to prosperity through many difficulties which would have discouraged and defeated a lesser man. . . . To those who had the privilege of knowing him, he has obtained a measure of immortality. Because of his kind-

Vaccination Drive Enters Rural Areas

Health Authorities Push Smallpox Inoculation as 5 More Become Ill.

Richland county health authorities extended their immunization program for school children into rural districts today as five more cases of smallpox were reported in the last 24 hours.

Four of the last five placed under quarantine were Mansfield children. The fifth case was a Springfield township student. In all, 28 have been taken ill with the disease since the first case was reported late last week.

Among the new cases was a 15-month-old child in a family where two other school children were already under quarantine with the disease.

2 State Physicians Aid.

Health authorities, with the aid of two specialists sent here by the state department of health, working day and night, moved into the rural school districts following the discovery of one case in the Springfield township school at Ontario.

Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county public health commissioner, said all pupils in Springfield, Weller, Madison, Washington and Franklin townships were to be vaccinated today before physicians entered other townships.

The commissioner estimated that more than 5,000 had been immunized by the health department in the past four days.

While no tabulations have been made nor any reports received of the number of persons inoculated by private physicians, Dr. Rehder estimated that another 5,000 had been vaccinated by them.

Physicians throughout the city reported their offices were crowded until late at night by persons awaiting vaccination. Meanwhile Dr. Paul Baird, assistant commissioner, and several nurses were on duty at the health department in the city building caring for the steady stream that has crowded the office until past 10 p. m. daily.

Dr. Finley Van Orsdall, chief of the communicable division of the state health department, said

URGES ACTION

Davey Asks Passage of Law Creating Building Board.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Passage of legislation creating a state building commission with power to issue $10,000,000 in bonds to finance an institutional building program was recommended to the legislature today by Governor Martin L. Davey.

Under an administration bill which the governor said would be presented to the legislature, the commission would "rent" the buildings to state departments at an annual fee sufficient to redeem the bonds, plus interets, over a 10-year period.

He estimated that the bonds could be marketed on a basis of two and one-half or three per cent interest, possibly less, "because they would be guilt-edged security."

MIAMI BEACH, Fla—(INS)—The body of Harvey S. Firestone, 69-year-old rubber king who died in his sleep here early Monday, today was en route to his home in Akron, O., for burial.

The body of the famed industrialist was placed aboard a special car attached to a seaboard train which left Miami last night. The funeral party will arrive in Akron early tomorrow, and during the day the body will lie in state at the Firestone home, Harbel Manor.

Funeral services will be conducted Friday morning.

BANDITS PRY OPEN SAFETY BOXES AT BAR

Estimates of Loot Taken Out of Customers' Deposits Run as High as $100,000.

2 ON GUARD AS PAL ROBS

Locks Battered With Chisel In Swift Order; Bar's Own Cash Left Intact.

(By International News Service)

MIAMI, Fla.—Three bandits today held up the Arena bar on busy Biscayne boulevard here and escaped with loot estimated by some sources at between $50,000 and $100,000, virtually all of which was in cash.

The bandits passed up the cash register and went direct to a score of safety deposit boxes on a balcony, which had been rented to customers of the bar.

Breaks Locks.

While two bandits remained on guard, the third took a chisel, battered open the doors of the safety deposit boxes and removed all cash from them.

Employes of the bar said they did not know how much money the safety deposit boxes contained. The boxes had been rented to customers who found the regular banking facilities in the city inconvenient.

From other sources, however, it was reported the loot may amount to as much as $100,000, and it was considered highly improbable it would go below $50,000.

KEEP CAPONE AT ALCATRAZ

Routine Treatment Decided on For Gangster Reported In Mental Collapse.

SAN FRANCISCO —(U.P.)— Federal authorities decided today on the customary prison treatment for Scarface Al Capone, who was reported to have become a blathering maniac while serving the last year of his sentence at gloomy Alcatraz island.

The Sicilian hoodlum from Chicago, who was disjected from the liquor rackets on an income tax charge nearly 10 years ago, and who still personifies the worst era in American gangsterism, has been confined in the prison hospital after a mental collapse.

Dr. Edward Twitchell, a San Francisco psychiatrist, who was called to examine Capone, declined to comment, but the San Francisco News reported that the former gangster was suffering from paresis, a degenerative brain disease characterized by alternating fits of depression and delusions of grandeur.

With his customary reticence on affairs of the "devil's island" in San Francisco bay, Warden James A. Johnston declined to give any information on Capone. But news that came from the island indirectly was that Capone had gone crazy, possibly from the isolation, monotony and discipline of prison life as well as other physical ailments, and that before he was taken from his

8 Die As French Flying Boat Hits Breakwater In Fog

MARSEILLE, France—(AP)—Eight persons were killed and six injured early this morning in the crash of an Air France flying boat against the Marseille breakwater at the moment of take-off.

The trans-Mediterranean airliner was starting her scheduled flight to Ajaccio, Corsica, on the Marseille-Tunis run. She hurtled against the breakwater at 60-mile an hour speed and burst into flames.

Air France announced the dead were five passengers and three of the crew. Four passengers and two of the crew were injured. All the dead were French, including Chief Pilto Pierre Burello, veteran flier who was at the controls.

The six injured were taken from the water by rescue craft after the plane sank. Three of the bodies were recovered.

Officials thought Burello probably failed to see the breakwater through morning fog and mist.

The four-motored ship was the first lost by Air France in more than two years, company officials said.

Graft Hunters Seek Speedy Court Hearing In Horn Case

PROBE STALLS, URGE JUDGE TO ACT QUICKLY

Senate Investigators Plan to March to Court With Plea For Early Decision.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The senate investigating committee sought a speedy hearing today on a court order which snatched from its hand a witness cited for contempt because he refused to answer questions.

The seven-member inquiry body and its counsel, James Metzenbaum, planned to march en masse to the court of Common Pleas Judge John R. King and urge that the hearing be held immediately.

Counsel for the witness, Glenn A. Horn, state purchasing agent, indicated, however, that it would require several days to prepare for the hearing, at which the committee must show cause why Horn should be detained further.

Yoder Dissatisfied.

While attorneys on both sides argued over the writ of habeas corpus which frustrated the committee's plans to try Horn on the charge of contempt before the senate yesterday, Lieut. Gov. Paul P. Yoder expressed dissatisfaction with the developments in the investigation.

Yoder, head of the senate bloc which fostered the inquiry, asserted he believed the committee acted "unfairly." He said that the committee, instead of getting "the real culprit" in disclosures that the state allegedly paid exorbitant prices for coal, tried to make Horn "the goat."

The lieutenant governor added: "If that is the best the committee can do, it might as well fold up."

He did not name "the real culprit."

Had Horn been hailed before the senate yesterday and refused again to answer questions about coal purchases, the committee intended to recommend that he be confined in jail for one hour or until the legislature adjourned for the day.

Insists on Attorney.

The purchasing agent insisted he did not object to the questions, but to being questioned without advice of counsel.

Chairman J. Ralph Seidner said today that the committee had not barred any witness from having an attorney, "although the law does not so require."

He remarked that "Mr. Horn was allowed to have two lawyers, until his second one tried to break up the committee proceedings." The second attorney, Clarence M. Addison, was ordered ejected from the hearing room.

Hoover Sails For Europe To Become Belgium's Guest

NEW YORK—(AP)—Bound on a "sentimental journey," former President Herbert Hoover is sailing for Europe today to re-visit the scenes of his historic labors as director of the food administration in war-ravaged Belgium.

Now 63, he was invited by the Belgian government and various Belgian universities to make the voyage for a round of ceremonies calculated to show the Belgian people's "unalterable attachment."

The program in Hoover's honor, it was stated, will signal the "twenty-years after" gratitude of a nation which never has forgotten the dark days of the World war when the Hoover commission fed millions of hungry inhabitants of the stricken little nation.

For five years, until July, 1919, Hoover directed a "kitchen empire" without parallel in history.

When the war ended, a huge financial surplus was left, and in the summer of 1919 the Belgian government officially entrusted to Hoover the disposal of the money. It was used in rebuilding famous universities and other educational and scientific institutions in Belgium.

ANTI-SALES TAX DRIVE ATTACKED

C. of C. Warns County Would Lose Quarter Million If Levy Was Repealed.

In a special bulletin issued today, the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce attacked the campaign, now being waged in Richland county, to obtain signatures to a petition calling for the repeal of the retail sales tax.

The C. of C. bulletin, issued by Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager, warned that Mansfield and Richland county schools and political sub-divisions would lose a quarter of a million dollars in operating revenue if the tax were repealed, and added that if the sales tax repeal move succeeds, another form of tax would have to be adopted to provide revenue.

The campaign for signatures for a repeal petition was started here last week by representatives of the Ohio Anti-Sales Tax association.

The C. of C. bulletin asserted that the claim of petition circulators that their move had the support of business groups throughout the state was false.

"Business organizations throughout the state are still thoroughly committed to the principles underlying the sales tax," the bulletin said.

1938 RANGE IN SPOTLIGHT AS TAPPAN SALES MEETING OPENS

The new 1938 model Tappan range took the spotlight today at the opening of a three-day meeting in Mansfield of sales representatives of the Tappan Stove company.

Approximately 75 men representing sales districts and cities throughout the United States registered for the opening session this morning at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The ballroom was set up with a display of 11 Tappan models, with the 1938 range in the center. Models were arranged in a semi-circle the full length of the ballroom, each one screened with a velvet panel, on which were letters spelling "Tappan 1938."

The new model, one of the most attractive ever made by the Mansfield concern, is all white with handles and keys of chromium and tomato red. One of the new features is a glass front oven with an inside oven light, so that dishes may be seen without opening the door. he oven is larger this year and chromium lined for easy cleaning. The stove has indirect lighting which is rapidly taking the place of direct light on a column above the stove top. Paul R. Tappan, president of the company, who introduced the new model, said.

Several of the models shown featured a trim in Dubonnet red and black, against a white background.

The meeting was opened by C. V. McConnel, sales manager. Alan P. Tappan, vice president of the company, gave a history of the development of the range and illustrated his talk with picture slides.

The morning session was devoted largely to discussing the Tappan models and the advantages of the divided top which was introduced several years ago by Tappan. The afternoon session was to include advertising and sales promotion, with R. J. Hammer, sales promotion manager, and S. C. Patno, national advertising representative from Cleveland, as the principal speakers.

Luncheon was served this noon in the Chinese room, and at a dinner this evening at the Leland, Earl Stone of the Curtis Publishing company, Philadelphia, will be the speaker.

WPA DIRECTOR SEEKS FUND OF $250,000,000

Mayors Ask $400,000,000, Hold Million More Persons Should Be Aided.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)— President Roosevelt is preparing to submit estimates for a deficiency relief appropriation to congress within 48 hours, Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley said after a White House conference today.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Estimates of additional work relief funds which President Roosevelt soon may recommend ranged today from $250,000,000 to $500,000,000.

The money, if the president decides to ask congress for it, will be used to supplement the $497,000,000 already available to the Works Progress administration up to June 30.

Aubrey Williams, assistant WPA director, was understood to have proposed the $250,000,000 figure in discussions with congressional leaders. He conferred yesterday with Mr. Roosevelt, Secretary Morgenthau and acting Budget Director Bell.

Midwest mayors who visited the White House yesterday urged the president to request $400,000,000. They told him that about a million persons should be added to the nearly 2,000,000 now on WPA rolls.

Studies Human Needs.

A group of house liberals told Mr. Roosevelt Monday that the need for additional funds might run as high as $500,000,000.

The president told reporters he was studying the relief subject from the point of view of relieving human needs rather than one of business pump-priming. He indicated that he expected to have something definite to say in the next few days.

Some congressional leaders recalled that until recently the administration had taken the attitude that present funds could be made to last out the fiscal year.

A WPA official said that in the week ending Jan. 22 there were 1,831,961 persons getting federal work relief and that the number had increased since that time.

He disclosed that present WPA plans, based on current funds, call for a peak load of just under 2,000,000 this month and then a gradual reduction to 1,500,000 by June 30. Last year on Feb. 27 there were 2,145,562 persons on the rolls.

Any additional relief appropriation for this fiscal year would throw the anticipated federal deficit far over the billion mark. In his last budget estimate President Roosevelt figured the net deficit for the year ending June 30 would be $1,088,129,600.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

CIO and the Communists.

IT WAS only a short time ago that any suggestion that the CIO was saturated with communism and being used by clever communists to foster their revolutionary plans was met with vehement denunciation from the professional liberals as "red baiting."

And if it were asserted that the communist leaders supported the New Deal because they believe its policies tend to break down the American system more quickly than it can be done by any other means, the charge was made that this was "Liberty league stuff," put out by the greedy rich who wanted to evade taxes. Yet the truth of both these things has been obvious for a long time. No one with any sense, of course, thinks that Mr. Roosevelt, or John L. Lewis, or David Dubinski is a communist. This, however, does not alter the fact that, in the last four years, the communist leaders practically have abandoned their own organization and linked themselves with Mr. Roosevelt's labor allies. And also, that, while certainly not classing themselves as communists, there are among the president's intimates one or two men who make no bones about their disbelief in the capitalistic system.

* * *

IN THE PAST, the habit has been to brand such statements as "reactionary hysteria." However, the "hysteria"—if that is the name for it—seems now to have broken out among the CIO labor leaders, themselves. Not only is the existence of communism in the CIO ranks openly conceded but there is actually a dispute as to whether, in the great United Automobile Workers union, the communists are not stronger than the anti-communists. For example, when, the other day, Homer Martin, head of the union, denounced communism and asserted that "the issue of communists and communism in the trade unions must be fought out to a finish"—when he made that assertion, a prompt statement came from C. A. Hathaway, member of the Communist party's central committee.

* * *

VERY vigorously Hathaway declared that the communists had now "taken the lead" in Martin's organization and that Martin "could not oust communists from their positions of influence because he will not be upheld by the rank and file of automobile workers." This seems equivalent to a declaration of control and certainly is a defiance. It followed upon a denunciation of communism by the United Mine Workers, who, undoubtedly directed by Lewis, reaffirmed their constitutional provision excluding communists from membership. And it followed, too, the A. F. of L. anti-communistic declaration at Miami, certain charges by Mr. Green concerning communism in the CIO and anti-communistic comments from Dubinski, of the powerful garment workers' union.

* * *

IT ALL ADDS up to the fact that the more conspicuous labor leaders seem suddenly to have awakened to the menace of communism in their unions and are now as vehement in asserting its existence as they formerly were in denying it. They point out that the communist support of the New Deal is sinister support and that the communists are out to capture the big unions for their own un-American purposes. In other words, this isn't just a common "communist scare." This isn't William Randolph Hearst talking through his hat. This is no red hunt. These are alarmed labor leaders, closely tied up to the White House, who have overreached themselves and now face an ugly situation.

* * *

IF MARTIN means what he says, and is going to make a fight to the finish to oust the communists, he ought to have the good wishes—in that fight, anyhow—of every patriotic American. And it isn't exactly helpful to have some of Lewis' close friends publicly referring to him as a "stuffed shirt" and a "phony." Maybe he is, but if this is—as he says—a fight to break the hold of communism on the U. A. W. A., the time to call him names is after the fight has been won—that is if the name callers want it won. Trade unions have come to stay in this country and everybody recognizes the fact. No fair-minded man wants to see them hurt. However, it would be pretty sad all around if they should be captured by the communists. That there is some danger of exactly that is the only possible deduction from the Martin-Hathaway controversy, the United Mine Workers' action and the general excitement on the subject in labor circles.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—J'accuse. In a bewildered, plaintive bleat, I accuse the movie dress designers of unfair, unethical, corrupt practices. They permitted their representative to strike behind my back.

That wily gentleman, telephoning, would have no words with me. Ah, no, he must speak to the head of the house.

"Mrs. C." said the blackguard, "the leading studio designers are having a style show. . . . You will come—and bring Mr. C?"

So Mr. C sat, squirming in prehistoric tux, trying to make his Adam's apple choose between upper and lower berth on a tight wing collar. Mr. C sat, while the models marched and the music (happily, Paul Whiteman's) played and the honey-toned commentators "described" and the Cocoanut Grove echoed with polite applause and the ebb of "Oh!" and the flow of "Ah!"

And then, drat it all, Mr. C suddenly realized that he had something there. A vital problem: Do clothes make the star or vice versa?

* * *

Here were the stars' clothes, spectacular, theatric, and mostly too-too, parading around without the stars in them. And yet the garments—beg pardon creations—were beautifully filled by lovely youth. Inevitable conclusion: Clothes have a goshdarned lot to do with it, even when you don't notice them on the screen.

To an old abandoned previewer these masterpieces of Adrian Royer, Orry-Kelly, Vera West, Milo Anderson, Gwen Wakeling—did I skip anyone?—should have been old stuff. All the gowns came from recent pictures yet all were news to me. Inevitable conclusion: A star's a star for a'l that.

Now where was I? Oh, yes, at a style show. All the stars aren't here, in fact not one in a Groveful. . . . They have sent stock players, stand-ins, professional models. . . . That Edith Abel, modeling the Kay Francis stuff, knows how. . . . The Brewster twins, wearing Alice Faye's, so delectable and demure. . . . Janet Shaw, so pretty!

A sample description: "Presents-ing-g-g-g-g . . . stunning flamingo dinner ensemb'e in black crepe roma and monek fur. . . . Note fringe and simply DIABOLIC use of sequins at hipline. It would not be complete without the WICKEDLY long black gloves."

What's WICKED about long gloves? Tell me that. . . . Comes my big moment, the climax. . . . Ah, Adrian's creations for "Mannequin" . . . Whimsical chap, he's given them names, to wit: "Feeling Like a Million" and "Second Wife" and "I Love Emeralds."

BARES STORY ON COMMUNISM

A. F. of L. Leader to Inform Senate Committee of CIO Director's 'Background.'

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Joseph P Ryan, president of the A. F. of L.'s International Longshoremen's association, testifies before the senate commerce committee today on the character, history and political affiliations of Harry Bridges, Australian born, a CIO director, and a leader of maritime labor on the Pacific coast.

Ryan, testifying voluntarily, will allege that Bridges is a communist and an undesirable alien He and Bridges are personal enemies

Senator Royal S. Copeland, D N.Y., chairman of the committee, who has been directing its investigation of labor conditions in the maritime industry, announced that Bridges would not be given an opportunity to testify or answer charges made against him before the committee.

"This is an American committee considering the American merchant marine," Copeland said "We've no place for aliens. There is nothing that Mr. Bridges could tell us that we do not already know."

Copeland already has expressed the hope that Bridges would be deported and announced that all evidence indicates that he "is a communist." Describing him as a "disturbing element" in the merchant marine, Copeland said that "it would be a blessing if he were deported and I hope and believe that he will be"

Bridges has steadfastly denied all charges of membership in the communist party.

Senate Investigators Plan to March to Court With Plea For Early Decision.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The senate investigating committee sought a speedy hearing today on a court order which snatched from its hand a witness cited for contempt because he refused to answer questions.

The seven-member inquiry body and its counsel, James Metzenbaum, planned to march en masse to the court of Common Pleas Judge John R. King and urge that the hearing be held immediately.

Counsel for the witness, Glenn A. Horn, state purchasing agent, indicated, however, that it would require several days to prepare for the hearing, at which the committee must show cause why Horn should be detained further.

Yoder Dissatisfied.

While attorneys on both sides argued over the writ of habeas corpus which frustrated the committee's plans to try Horn on the charge of contempt before the senate yesterday, Lieut. Gov. Paul P Yoder expressed dissatisfaction with the developments in the investigation.

Yoder, head of the senate bloc which fostered the inquiry, asserted he believed the committee acted "unfairly." He said that the committee, instead of getting "the real culprit" in disclosures that the state allegedly paid exorbitant prices for coal, tried to make Horn "the goat."

The lieutenant governor added: "If that is the best the committee can do, it might as well fold up."

He did not name "the real culprit."

Had Horn been hailed before the senate yesterday and refused again to answer questions about coal purchases, the committee intended to recommend that he be confined in jail for one hour or until the legislature adjourned for the day.

Insists on Attorney.

The purchasing agent insisted he did not object to the questions, but to being questioned without advice of counsel.

Chairman J. Ralph Seidner said today that the committee had not barred any witness from having an attorney, "although the law does not so require."

He remarked that "Mr. Horn was allowed to have two lawyers, until his second one tried to break up the committee proceedings." The second attorney, Clarence M Addison, was ordered ejected from the hearing room.

Hoover Sails For Europe To Become Belgium's Guest

NEW YORK—(AP)—Bound on a "sentimental journey," former President Herbert Hoover is sailing for Europe today to re-visit the scenes of his historic labors as director of the food administration in war-ravaged Belgium.

Now 63, he was invited by the Belgian government and various Belgian universities to make the voyage for a round of ceremonies calculated to show the Belgian people's "unalterable attachment."

The program in Hoover's honor, it was stated, will signal the "twenty-years after" gratitude of a nation which never has forgotten the dark days of the World war when the Hoover commission fed millions of hungry inhabitants of the stricken little nation.

For five years, until July, 1919, Hoover directed a "kitchen empire" without parallel in history.

When the war ended, a huge financial surplus was left, and in the summer of 1919 the Belgian government officially entrusted to Hoover the disposal of the money. It was used in rebuilding famous universities and other educational and scientific institutions in Belgium.

Roosevelt to Ask More Millions For Needy

Up and Down THE STREET

Some of his associates at the courthouse who lost football bets to him last fall, put Recorder Howard Wenning "on the spot" today for cigars and "treats." The reason was that the Wennings last night became the parents of a son born at General hospital. It was the second occasion for "treating" in the courthouse in the past week. A few days ago Paul Mitchell, deputy in the treasurer's office, was celebrating the birth of a first son by distributing cigars, candy and ice cream.

Motorists can sympathize with A. D. (Bing) Robb. Because the tires on his car were considered better than another volunteers, Robb was elected to help transport the high school swimming team to Toledo for a meet the other day. But Robb found out you just can't tell about tires. The trip to Toledo was uneventful, but the return journey was a nightmare. He had to fix three "flats" in the five-hour return trip which ordinarily can be made in half the time.

Announcements and programs broadcast over the public address system at Senior high school soon will be made from a soundproof room that will resemble a studio in a radio station. Workmen today covered the plaster walls with a wood fiber composition that will eliminate unnecessary noises from the room. The room adjoins the office of Principal Jesse Beer.

The variety of requests that come to the Y. W. C. A. information desk is interesting, if not downright spectacular. The other night a taxi driver came in hesitatingly and asked for a minister, explaining he had a couple out in his cab who wanted to get married. Which was not quite so difficult to handle as the case of the young girl who sought advice on how to get her mother to leave her father.

WPA DIRECTOR SEEKS FUND OF $250,000,000

Mayors Ask $400,000,000, Hold Million More Persons Should Be Aided.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)— President Roosevelt is preparing to submit estimates for a deficiency relief appropriation to congress within 48 hours, Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley said after a White House conference today.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Estimates of additional work relief funds which President Roosevelt soon may recommend ranged today from $250,000,000 to $500,000,000

The money, if the president decides to ask congress for it, will be used to supplement the $497,000,000 already available to the Works Progress administration up to June 30.

Aubrey Williams, assistant WPA director, was understood to have proposed the $250,000,000 figure in discussions with congressional leaders. He conferred yesterday with Mr. Roosevelt, Secretary Morgenthau and acting Budget Director Bell.

Midwest mayors who visited the White House yesterday urged the president to request $400,000,000 They told him that about a million persons should be added to the nearly 2,000,000 now on WPA rolls

Studies Human Needs.

A group of house liberals told Mr. Roosevelt Monday that the need for additional funds might run as high as $500,000,000.

The president told reporters he was studying the relief subject from the point of view of relieving human needs rather than one of business pump-priming. He indicated that he expected to have something definite to say in the next few days.

Some congressional leaders recalled that until recently the administration had taken the attitude that present funds could be made to last out the fiscal year.

A WPA official said that in the week ending Jan. 22 there were 1,831,961 persons getting federal work relief and that the number had increased since that time

He disclosed that present WPA plans, based on current funds, call for a peak load of just under 2,000,000 this month and then a gradual reduction to 1,500,000 by June 30. Last year on Feb. 27 there were 2,145,562 persons on the rolls.

Any additional relief appropriation for this fiscal year would throw the anticipated federal deficit far over the billion mark. In his last budget estimate President Roosevelt figured the net deficit for the year ending June 30 would be $1,088,129,600.

ANTI-SALES TAX DRIVE ATTACKED

C. of C. Warns County Would Lose Quarter Million If Levy Was Repealed.

In a special bulletin issued today, the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce attacked the campaign, now being waged in Richland county, to obtain signatures to a petition calling for the repeal of the retail sales tax.

The C. of C. bulletin, issued by Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager, warned that Mansfield and Richland county schools and political sub-divisions would lose a quarter of a million dollars in operating revenue if the tax were repealed, and added that if the sales tax repeal move succeeds, another form of tax would have to be adopted to provide revenue.

The campaign for signatures for a repeal petition was started here last week by representatives of the Ohio Anti-Sales Tax association.

The C. of C bulletin asserted that the claim of petition circulators that their move had the support of business groups throughout the state was false.

"Business organizations throughout the state are still thoroughly committed to the principles underlying the sales tax," the bulletin said.

1938 RANGE IN SPOTLIGHT AS TAPPAN SALES MEETING OPENS

The new 1938 model Tappan range took the spotlight today at the opening of a three-day meeting in Mansfield of sales representatives of the Tappan Stove company.

Approximately 75 men representing sales districts and cities throughout the United States registered for the opening session this morning at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The ballroom was set up with a display of 11 Tappan models, with the 1938 range in the center. Models were arranged in a semi-circle the full length of the ballroom, each one screened with a velvet panel, on which were letters spelling "Tappan 1938."

The new model, one of the most attractive ever made by the Mansfield concern, is all white with handles and keys of chromium and tomato red. One of the new features is a glass front oven with an inside oven light, so that dishes may be seen without opening the door. he oven is larger this year and chromium lined for easy cleaning The stove has indirect lighting which is rapidly taking the place of direct light on a column above the stove top. Paul R. Tappan, president of the company, who introduced the new model, said.

Several of the models shown featured a trim in Dubonnet red and black, against a white background.

The meeting was opened by C V. McConnel, sales manager. Alan P. Tappan, vice president of the company, gave a history of the development of the range and illustrated his talk with picture slides.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

CIO and the Communists.

IT WAS only a short time ago that any suggestion that the CIO was saturated with communism and being used by clever communists to foster their revolutionary plans was met with vehement denunciation from the professional liberals as "red baiting."

And if it were asserted that the communist leaders supported the New Deal because they believe its policies tend to break down the American system more quickly than it can be done by any other means, the charge was made that this was "Liberty league stuff," put out by the greedy rich who wanted to evade taxes. Yet the truth of both these things has been obvious for a long time. No one with any sense, of course, thinks that Mr. Roosevelt, or John L. Lewis, or David Dubinski is a communist. This, however, does not alter the fact that, in the last four years, the communist leaders practically have abandoned their own organization and linked themselves with Mr. Roosevelt's labor allies. And also, that, while certainly not classing themselves as communists, there are among the president's intimates one or two men who make no bones about their disbelief in the capitalistic system.

* * *

IN THE PAST, the habit has been to brand such statements as "reactionary hysteria." However, the "hysteria"—if that is the name for it—seems now to have broken out among the CIO labor leaders, themselves. Not only is the existence of communism in the CIO ranks openly conceded but there is actually a dispute as to whether, in the great United Automobile Workers union, the communists are not stronger than the anti-communists. For example, when, the other day, Homer Martin, head of the union, denounced communism and asserted that "the issue of communists and communism in the trade unions must be fought out to a finish"—when he made that assertion, a prompt statement came from C. A. Hathaway, member of the Communist party's central committee.

* * *

VERY vigorously Hathaway declared that the communists had now "taken the lead" in Martin's organization and that Martin "could not oust communists from their positions of influence because he will not be upheld by the rank and file of automobile workers." This seems equivalent to a declaration of control and certainly is a defiance. It followed upon a denunciation of communism by the United Mine Workers, who, undoubtedly directed by Lewis, reaffirmed their constitutional provision excluding communists from membership. And it followed, too, the A. F. of L. anti-communistic declaration at Miami, certain charges by Mr. Green concerning communism in the CIO and anti-communistic comments from Dubinski, of the powerful garment workers' union.

* * *

IT ALL ADDS up to the fact that the more conspicuous labor leaders seem suddenly to have awakened to the menace of communism in their unions and are now as vehement in asserting its existence as they formerly were in denying it. They point out that the communist support of the New Deal is sinister support and that the communists are out to capture the big unions for their own un-American purposes. In other words, this isn't just a common "communist scare." This isn't William Randolph Hearst talking through his hat. This is no red hunt. These are alarmed labor leaders, closely tied up to the White House, who have overreached themselves and now face an ugly situation.

* * *

IF MARTIN means what he says, and is going to make a fight to the finish to oust the communists, he ought to have the good wishes—in that fight, anyhow—of every patriotic American. And it isn't exactly helpful to have some of Lewis' close friends publicly referring to him as a "stuffed shirt" and a "phony." Maybe he is, but if this is—as he says—a fight to break the hold of communism on the U. A. W. A., the time to call him names is after the fight has been won—that is if the name callers want it won. Trade unions have come to stay in this country and everybody recognizes the fact. No fair-minded man wants to see them hurt. However, it would be pretty sad all around if they should be captured by the communists. That there is some danger of exactly that is the only possible deduction from the Martin-Hathaway controversy, the United Mine Workers' action and the general excitement on the subject in labor circles.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—J'accuse. In a bewildered, plaintive bleat, I accuse the movie dress designers of unfair, unethical, corrupt practices. They permitted their representative to strike behind my back.

That wily gentleman, telephoning, would have no words with me. Ah, no, he must speak to the head of the house.

"Mis. C," said the blackguard, "the leading studio designers are having a style show. . . . You will come—and bring Mr. C?"

So Mr. C sat, squirming in prehistoric tux, trying to make his Adam's apple choose between upper and lower berth on a tight wing collar. Mr. C sat, while the models marched and the music (happily, Paul Whiteman's) played and the honey-toned commentators "described" and the Cocoanut Grove echoed with polite applause and the ebb of "Oh!" and the flow of "Ah!"

And then, drat it all, Mr. C suddenly realized that he had something there. A vital problem: Do clothes make the star or vice versa?

* * *

Here were the stars' clothes, spectacular, theatric, and mostly too-too, parading around without the stars in them. And yet the garments—beg pardon, creations—were beautifully filled by lovely youth Inevitable conclusion: Clothes have a goshdarned lot to do with it, even when you don't notice them on the screen.

To an old abandoned previewer these masterpieces of Adrian Royer Orry-Kelly, Vera West, Milo Anderson, Gwen Wakeling—did I skip anyone?—should have been old stuff. All the gowns came from recent pictures yet all were news to me Inevitable conclusion: A star's a star for a'l that.

Now where was I? Oh, yes, at a style show. All the stars aren't here, in fact not one in a Groveful . . . They have sent stock players, stand-ins, professional models. . . . That Edith Abel, modeling the Kay Francis stuff, knows how. . . . The Brewster twins, wearing Alice Faye's, so delectable and demure. . . . Janet Shaw, so pretty!

A sample description: "Pres-ENT-ing-g-g-g-g . . . stunning flamingo dinner ensemb'e in black crepe roma and monek fur. . . . Note fringe and simply DIABOLIC use of sequins at hipline. It would not be complete without the WICKEDLY long black gloves."

What's WICKED about long gloves? Tell me that. . . . Comes my big moment, the climax. . . . Ah, Adrian's creations for "Mannequin!" . . . Whimsical chap, he's given them names, to wit: "Feeling Like a Million" and "Second Wife" and "I Love Emeralds."

Rumors of "grudge race" at two miles heard as word circulates about a strained relationship between Cunningham, Lash.

RUMORS of a surprise meeting and "grudge race" at two miles between Glenn Cunningham and Don Lash were current today in A. A. U. circles, as word began to circulate about a slightly strained relationship between the two show-window athletes of American foot racing. If, when and in case it happens, the grudge, in a certain sense, may be Cunningham's, but the surprise will be strictly Lash's.

The hurrying Hoosier won't know the business is in until he meets Cunningham on the mark at the former's favorite distance. Cunningham, I'm told, will simply wait until he feels that he's absolutely "right" for the effort and then he'll "double up"—just as Lash has been doing all season—in the mile and two mile races on the evening in question, only this time Glenn will make his real race at the longer distance.

* * *

THEY say that Lash must be ready to break his own world's record by quite a few seconds, or be prepared to take the consequences; that Cunningham has laid out a time schedule whereby he plans to race through the first mile in 4.24, thus taking a lot of run out of anybody who tries to stay with him.

He thinks he can then come back through the final mile around 4.26, which would bring him home in 8.50 for the full distance, eight seconds better than Lash's time.

There is no outward sign in Cunningham's demeanor that all does not rest easily between himself and the eccentric gentleman from Indiana who apparently runs most of his races by ear and still manages to win, pretty much at pleasure. Cunningham's friends, though, are said to be steamed by the possibility that twice so far in indoor races Lash has started in the special mile, both in New York and in Boston, with no other purpose—they charge—than to slow down the pace and make the field look sour.

Then, according to the same charge, he goes out later in the two mile event, runs a clinking race and steals the show.

In this connection, it is further pointed out, by way of intended corroboration, that Lash went to the pace in the Boston mile some weeks ago, slowed it down to a 2 12 half mile and then walked off the track. In the Millrose mile last Saturday, he jumped the pace in the first half lap, ran to the quarter in 63 seconds, faded back somewhere—and walked off the track.

In each case, it was said that the early going was so slow as to preclude any possibility of Cunningham or anybody else breaking a record.

* * *

TO THE contention that if Cunningham—or anybody else—didn't like the going, they had the option of moving up to the pace themselves, the reply was that Lash was only waiting for such a bid in order to engage in series of spurts and counter-spurts that might result in getting Cunningham knocked off by San Romani or somebody else. So it seems that everything isn't just darling any more and, while it probably means that there's a lot of lowlife in me, I'm all for any discord that can be worked up among our sterling performers.

For geniality and good will may be very excellent virtues. But animosity is always more interesting.

NEWCOMERS LEAD RACES

Hillsboro, Mesopotamia Pack Spectacular Records on High School Court.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Two newcomers — Hillsboro and Mesopotamia—paced Ohio's high school basketeers today after a week of warfare which swept all but one of the class A teams into the defeated list—the principal victim being Hamilton's state champion quintet which ran its victory streak to 40 before bowing Saturday night to the Portsmouth Trojans.

Hillsboro's Indians remained the only unblemished class A team as Hamilton, Akron North and Youngstown Scienceville succumbed for the first time. Canton McKinley's rampaging Bulldogs ended Akron North's string at 12 straight, while class B Poland knocked Scienceville out of the select circle.

Mesopotamia, village of 150 in Trumbull county, racked up its 18th straight win Saturday to take the class B lead, nosing out Enon of Clark county and Johnston of Trumbull county by one game. The Mesopotamia club in the last five years has a great record, suffering but six defeats over that stretch, all the setbacks coming in the county or sectional tournaments, after perfect pre-tourney seasons.

Madison Authorities Call Off Lucas Game.

Announcement was made by Madison high school officials today that the Richland county league game scheduled between Madison and Lucas Friday night has been cancelled. The game was cancelled because of the smallpox outbreak.

'TUX' TOUR

(By Associated Press)

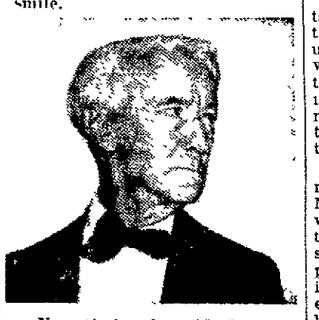
These men of sport usually are pictured in athletic garb and the odds are you won't recognize all of them in evening attire. They offer a fashion note, too—four of the six favor soft shirts with turned-down collars.

That's a quizzical smile. Perhaps Joe DiMaggio is wondering about his Yankee contract.

Robert Sweeney, American-born British amateur golf champion, isn't thinking of pars now.

Mayfair's boxerman-about-town, Thomas Farr, sports a white tie for night-club warbling.

James J. Braddock, retired ex-heavyweight boxing champion, gives a fighting man's smile.



Your tie is askew, Mr. Landis. But a little droop doesn't bother baseball's commissioner.

Babe Ruth enjoys himself these nights telling of pars and birdies instead of home runs.

Favored Tonight

Sports, Elks Picked to Win City League Tilts Billed at Mansfield Gym.

Tonight's Program

7:30—Westinghouse vs. Canzols.
8:30—Elks vs. Pure Oils.

IRA D. LING'S CANZOLS will be afforded an opportunity to stage the biggest upset of the season tonight when City Class A league quintets resume their schedule at Mansfield high school.

But it may be expecting too much to ask the lowly Canzols to trim the undefeated Yuncker Sports, whom they engage in, the 7:30 game on tonight's bill.

However, the Canzols appear to pack considerable more strength than their record indicates.

Canzols Are Overdue.

The Canzols are overdue. They have won just one league tussle this season, and while this total is not likely to be increased tonight, the Oils may offer the Sports some trouble.

Judging from the records, it will be rather difficult to keep the Sports from winning the second round title. They took the first round honors in stride, and no rival has shown any signs of breaking their streak.

The Sports have one of their toughest assignments of this round yet to face in the Westinghouse club, which they tackle next week.

But the most the Westies can derive from a victory over the Sports is a tie for first place if the Yuncker club topples the Canzols tonight according to the dope.

In the 8:30 game tonight, the Elks meet the Mack Pure Oils, and the lodgemen are favored to annex the victory to go into a tie with the Westies for second place.

Still Have Chance.

The Elks, like the Westies, also possess title chances, but their hopes depend on the outcome of the plant team's game with the Sports next week.

Y Gets Ready For Tourneys

Plans City Table Tennis and Handball Events.

Entries are now being received for the annual city table tennis and handball tournaments, sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., according to an announcement made today by Donald D. Cram, physical director of the Y.

Dr. D. A. Weir, chairman of the table tennis tournament, announces that the table tournament will get underway within the next two weeks so that players may enter the state Y meet in Columbus during latter part of March. A chairman has not been appointed as yet to supervise the city handball tournament.

The table tennis tournament will no doubt be one of the best in Mansfield for a number of years with the increase in popularity of the event. Bob Ellison, last year's singles champion, will not participate in the meet this year as he is out of the city. However, several favorites are in line to succeed him.

Any persons in Mansfield interested in entering the tournament are requested to get in touch with Cram at the Y. M. C. A.

Entries for the two tournaments close Feb. 15.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Earl Averill, veteran outfielder of the Cleveland Indians, today signed a contract for the 1938 season. It was believed he signed his present contract for $12,000 with a bonus clase attached.

RISKO TO MEET BURMAN

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Clarence (Red) Burman of Baltimore and Johnny Risko, Cleveland, were matched today for a 10-round prize fight at Miami, Fla., Feb. 15.

RANDOM SHOTS

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

ABOUT the hottest thing in basketball tights in this section of the mid-west this winter is Nick Frascella.

The Italian boy from Trenton, N. J., who is making cage history at Wooster college can do more with a basketball than Eddie Bergen can with Charley McCarthy.

Frascella has scored so many points that the Scots' followers, not to mention Coach Mose Hole, have lost count.

In six Ohio conference games Frascella has accumulated 170 points, or an average of 28.3 per contest, and, as you need not be told that is really flipping the leather.

The lowest total to which the Trenton terror has been held this season is about 15 points, and he wasn't exactly stopped in that game.

* * *

HE HAS scored more than 30 points in four games, outscoring the entire opposing team in each tilt.

A player who can consistently score so many points should be qualified as an authority on the re-action of a heavy scoring star to "pressure."

The Wooster flash, who has averaged something like 18 points per game since he donned Wooster livery, isn't generally conscious of the strain. "But once in awhile when one is reminded of it," Frascella says "it does make you 'press.' However, a deliberate check on yourself soon puts you back in your proper mental frame."

Frascella has a "scoring sense," according to his coach. His ability to fake a guard out of position to get a good open shot has much to do with his high scoring. He gets into position by faking and feinting, quick steps and quick starts, fast breaks and starts. Most of his shots are of the one-handed variety.

* * *

HE ALSO has his ideas about the elimination of the tip. Glad to have a chance to play under both rules, Frascella, looking at it from the standpoint of scoring opportunities, prefers the "jump-less" game.

"The jump-less game," he says, "has created a new interest among players and made for more action." He does not believe that the new game has a harmful physical effect on the athlete.

This is Frascella's final year in college, and he intends to enter the professional ranks following graduation.

Smallpox Scare Stops Mansfield-Willard Tilt.

The Mansfield-Willard high school basketball game scheduled at the Tyger lair last night was postponed late yesterday afternoon at the request of Willard school officials because of the outbreak of smallpox in this city.

An attempt will probably be made later to play the game, Coach Russ Murphy said today.

The once-defeated First Lutheran and Park Avenue Baptist quintets continued their winning ways in the Church Class B league last night on the Y. M. C. A. hardwood.

The Lutherans broke loose with a determined second-half rally to rout the Central M. E. outfit, 30 to 20, while the Baptists kept pace by walloping the First M. E. combine, 23 to 12.

First Christian clung onto third place in the league race by defeating the Mayflower club, 20 to 14, and the South Main Evangelical team beat St. John's, 35 to 26, in the other grames. The First Presbyterian five won on a forfeit over B'Nai Jacob.

Some 40 Major Leaguers Seek Pay Hikes This Year, UP Survey Shows.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

(United Press Sports Writer)

SOME 40 major league baseball players are dissatisfied with the contracts offered them and may be termed "hold-outs," a survey by the United Press shows.

Listed among the holdout leaders are Joe DiMaggio and Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees. DiMaggio turned down Col. Jake Ruppert's offer of $25,000 and asked for $40,000.

Demands $40,000.

Gehrig joined the holdouts yesterday when Ruppert refused his $40,000 demand. He was offered the same salary as last year, believed to have been $36,000. The first baseman is just back from Hollywood where the fabulous salaries may have put some new ideas in his head.

"Red" Ruffing, Yanks pitcher, was the most stubborn holdout last season, refusing to come to terms until May 5. The two leading candidates to become the "Ruffing of 1938" are Joe Stripp, infielder traded by Brooklyn to the St Louis Cardinals last fall, and Pitcher Paul Derringer of the Reds.

Stripp has been offered $5,000 and wants $10,000. Vice President Branch Rickey says Stripp will be the hardest Cardinal to sign and that he anticipates no real trouble swinging Dizzy Dean, Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize into line.

Derringer Gets Slash.

Derringer's salary has been cut from $17,500 to $7,500. He has asked to be traded but the Reds haven't found any club seriously interested.

The holdout situation with each club follows:

AMERICAN LEAGUE

NEW YORK YANKEES: Twelve out of 28 players signed. Prominent players unsigned are DiMaggio, Gehrig, Dickey, Ruffing, Gomez and Henrich.

DETROIT TIGERS: Club reports all players signed, but Hank Greenberg is still believed to be negotiating.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX: Bonura, Lyons Cain and Luke Sewell unsigned. Bonura is a perennial holdout.

CLEVELAND INDIANS: Johnny Allen reportedly holdout for $20,000 and Frank Pytlak for $10,000. Bob Feller unsigned but has agreed to terms.

BOSTON RED SOX: Officials report there are no holdouts, but Eric McNair is kicking.

WASHINGTON SENATORS: Wes Ferrell and John Stone still dickering over their salaries but Al Simmons, who took a big cut last year, is likely to be No 1 holdout.

PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS: Connie Mack reports no holdouts.

ST. LOUIS BROWNS: Harland Clift and Beau Bell definitely holdouts, asking about $12,500 and offered $8,000. Jack Knott balking over having his pay cut from $8,000 to $6,000. Bill Knickerbocker refuses to accept conditional contract.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

NEW YORK GIANTS: Eighteen signed. Principal holdouts are Dick Littrell, Gus Mancuso, Cliff Melton and Joe Moore.

CHICAGO CUBS: Frank Demaree and Billy Jurges both stubborn holdouts.

PITTSBURGH PIRATES: Paul Waner, Woody Jensen and Gus Suhr all holdouts. Waner is asking a raise over his $18,000 salary last year.

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS: Unsigned players are Dizzy Dean, Joe Medwick, Johnny Mize and Joe Stripp. Dizzy offered $10,000 and wants $20,000. Medwick probably will get the $17,500 he's seeking. Mize, offered $8,000, wants $12,500.

BOSTON BEES: Club says no holdouts.

BROOKLYN DODGERS: Buddy Hassett is a holdout because of offer of $1,000 less than received last year.

PHILADELPHIA PHILLIES: Club announces no contract troubles.

REDS: Twenty of 31 players on Roster signed. Paul Derringer main holdout. Lombardi, Hafey, Virgil Davis and Lonnie Fred either haven't received contracts or have had them long enough to reply.

Cage Teams Play to Tie On Galion Court.

GALION—(AP)—Bliss college of Columbus and the Galion Globe Clothiers put a tie basketball game in the records today. The two quintets battled through three overtime periods to a 34-34 deadlock last night then, too tired to continue, decided to "call the whole thing off."

'TIPSY' DRIVING ON INCREASE, RECORDS SHOW

Six Arrested In January on Charge, 50 Per Cent More Than Same Period In '37.

"Tipsy" driving is on the increase in Mansfield, municipal court records showed today.

The mixture of alcohol and gasoline caused the arrest of six persons in the past month for operating motor vehicles while under the influence of alcohol, a 50 per cent increase over the same period last year. Four arrests on the same charge were also recorded during January, 1936, as against three during the same period the first year following repeal.

Only a slight increase in 1937 arrests for driving while intoxicated was noted over the three previous years. Last year the total number of arrests on this charge reached 40, as compared with 34 in 1936.

If the present rate of arrests continued during the balance of 1938, a record of 72 would be set, an increase of 32 over the past year, and more than twice the number arrested on the charge during 1936.

Would Set Record.

Records showed that offenders drew more severe penalties during the past year than in previous year. In each instance driving rights were revoked for a period of one year.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch's policy of a $100 fine and costs, revocation of the operator's permit for one year, and a 30-day jail sentence in some cases, suspended on condition that the fine and costs are paid, has resulted in an almost 100 per cent payment of fines assessed on the charge, records revealed.

STEELS, MOTORS LEAD GENERAL STOCK ADVANCE

Market Extends Gains By Fractions to Point or More In Upturn.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stocks trod the recovery path today, extending Tuesday's gains by fractions to a point or more.

Steels and motors were at the forefront of the advance. Volume was moderate.

The president's expression of hope at a press conference yesterday that a decision might be soon forthcoming on requested higher freight rates aided the carrier shares. Steels benefitted from the hope present wage conferences between U. S. Steel excutives and union laders would soon result in an amicable agreement.

Bonds tended higher, as did the major commodities. Most foreign markets were on the upgrade.

In the boardrooms, analysts found little cheer in the report of the Edison Electric Institute the electric power output for the week ended Feb. 5, down more than seasonally expected, had reached a new 1937-38 low.

"Iron Age" reported that "with lower scrap quotations and an unchanged rate of ingot output the steel industry finds its principal outlets still operating on recent low production schedules." The publication found, however, that automobile manufacturers were predicting improved sales.

KEEP CAPONE AT ALCATRAZ

Routine Treatment Decided on For Gangster Reported In Mental Collapse.

cell he had become a drooling, idiotic figure who would spend hours at a time arranging his cot, bellowing arias from Pagliacci and other Italian operas, kicking, clawing and spitting at anyone who approached him.

The department of justice in Washington announced that Capone's affliction would win him no favors. The department confirmed the rumors to the extent of saying that he had been confined in the prison hospital since last Saturday, when he "became ill."

"He is still under observation, but the doctors have not made a definite diagnosis of the case," the official statement said. "The department has no intention of transferring him to another institution in the near future, unless the diagnosis indicates that hospitalization at another institution is necessary."

Occasionally, federal prisoners suffering from menal troubles are moved to the prison at Springfield, Mo, William Mahan, kidnaper of the Weyerhaeuser boy, was moved there last year from Alcatraz.

Capone was sentenced to 11 years imprisonment for evading income taxes on the loot of his mob depredations and with time off for good behavior, he would be freed on Jan. 19, 1938. He has been involved in several brawls at Alcatraz, but in all of them he was set upon by other prisoners. Those who have been freed from Alctraz after serving their terms have described Capone as "the most hated man on the island," and it was said that the constant fear of his life might have contributed to his mental condition.

RELIEF COSTS HIT NEW HIGH

Commissioners Act Again to Trim Expenses as January Bills Total $20.000.

ceiving direct aid in Mansfield, Madison township, Shelby and Jefferson townships

"The picture at the relief office is changed little from last month," Nist said today, "and there's not much hope of making any large reduction in the relief costs until general business conditions improve."

The only path open for county relief officials, Nist said, is to permit only those in actual need to receive aid and to keep a closer watch on relief clients who can find work or a means of support other than the county relief dole.

Auditor Wolfe said that while the relief fund is exhausted and there is no chance of using anything from the county general fund for relief, the county will get more than $10,000 from the state as January and February allocations under the new relief law.

The county is assisted to about $5,000 monthly for six months from the state for relief, Wolfe said, and from that source current and past due bills must be paid

RESTS SOON IN TRIAL OF GIRLS

State Completes Case In Murder of Jersey Bus Driver.

NEWARK, N. J.—(AP)—Prosecutor William A. Wachenfeld prepared today the finale of his case against two girls charged with killing a bus driver in a holdup to get spending money.

Calling it "murder in the first degree," he has asked the death penalty for Mrs. Ethel "Bunny" Sohn 20-year-old daughter of a Newark policeman and Genevieve Owens 18.

The bus driver William Barbour, 34, was shot fatally at Bayonne, Dec. 21 in a trip attempt to recover Mrs Sohl from whom he had $2.10 in the effort Prosecutor Wachenfeld said.

NAMES OF TAX DELINQUENTS TO BE PUBLISHED

County Ready to List 1,500 Unless They Arrange to Pay Before March 1.

Under a new state law, the names of 1,500 delinquent tax payers in Richland county will be published about March 1 unless the property owners arrange to pay up before then, Atty. Marshall C. Moore said today.

Moore, who is special assistant prosecutor in charge of collections of delinquent taxes, said notices of the publication will be mailed within a few days to all the landholders whose names appear on the lists.

By paying delinquencies or making arrangements to pay during the next three weeks, the delinquent property owner will eliminate his name from the list, Moore explained.

Part of State Campaign.

The law requiring publication of delinquents' names was enacted as a part of a state-wide campaign to collect past due real estate taxes.

Total delinquent real estate and special assessment levies in Richland county at the opening of the first-half collection Feb. 1 amounted to $365,341. Delinquencies were reduced by $86,228 in 1937.

More than half the delinquent tax bill is owed by Mansfield property holders, who have permitted their unpaid taxes to mount to $190,406. The townships and villages in the county owe $148,342 and the city of Shelby, $26,593.

Taxes have been delinquent for three years or more on approximately 2,500 parcels of property in the county.

INCOME TAX IN NUTSHELL

NO. 14

Exemption Allowed State Employes.

The compensation of officers and employes of a State or any political subdivision thereof, which is paid from public funds of the State or political subdivision, as distinguished from amounts collected from individuals or private corporations, if the services of such officers or employes are rendered in connection with activities which constitute the discharge of an essential governmental function, as distinguished from a proprietary function, is exempt from Federal income tax.

The compensation of such officers and employes is subject to Federal income tax if their services were rendered in connection with the exercise of a proprietary function.

For example, the compensation of the Governor of a State, the mayor of a city, councilmen, board of aldermen, public-school teachers, firemen and policemen is not subject to Federal income tax. The compensation of such officers and employes whose services are connected with the liquidation by the State of insurance companies or banks, which is paid from funds of the companies being liquidated, is not exempt from Federal income tax

Compensation received by employes of a municipally owned street railway or electric light plant is subject to Federal income tax, as such activities are proprietary rather than governmental in character.

Fees for special services to a State are taxable, as, for example, compensation paid architects and builders for planning and erecting a State capitol or other State or municipal building. An officer or an employe of a State, for the purpose of the income-tax law, is one whose services are continuous and not occasional or temporary

Brick Landmark, Converted Into Tea Room, Opens

One more old landmark in Mansfield joins the march of progress with the opening today of the old Wiler home, 82 West Fourth street, as a dining place.

The old brick residence built in 1845 and one of the best examples of early American architecture in Mansfield, has been converted into a tea room by Jane Ashcraft and Jean Todd, of Wheeling, W. Va., both of whom are experienced in tea room management. It will be known as the Towne House

The charm of the early period has been preserved in redecorating and refurnishing the house. Rush bottom and ladder back chairs are used, with ocasional Windsor chairs and small tables. The center lights are authentic "hanging lamps" picked up in old Virginia homes, which have been electrified. Antique glass, old china and old pictures carry out the early American impression. Dishes are in Colonial patterns.

After the opening dinner tonight luncheons and dinner will be served daily, and the Towne House will be open on Sundays from 12 to 8:30 p. m.

It also will be available for parties.

LABOR TO HOLD FORUM ON OLD AGE INSURANCE

Security Board Speakers to Explain Purposes of Act at Bowman School Feb. 16.

The purposes and benefits of the Social Security law will be explained at a public forum Wednesday night, Feb. 16, at the Bowman street school, R. G. Mish, manager of the Mansfield field office of the Social Security board, announced today.

The forum, sponsored by organized labor in Mansfield with the cooperation of Mish, will "explain to workers just what their obligations and privileges are under the Social Security act," Mish said.

Speakers representing the Social Security board at the forum will be E. Hester, Cleveland, assistant regional representative of the old age insurance bureau, and E. L. Keenan, regional unemployment compensation representative.

Take Up 2 Questions.

"The principal discussion will be devoted to old-age insurance and unemployment compensation," Mish said.

"We feel that there are hundreds of workers in the Mansfield area who are unaware of all their privileges under the old-age insurance program," he added. "This is shown by the fact that in 1937 our office filed only 141 claims for lump-sum payments to which persons in this district were entitled. Estimates had indicated that our office might file at least 400 claims."

Mish said discussions at the forum will include methods of filing claims, information as to the account numbers, and other facts pertaining to the Social Security set-up.

The committee sponsoring the forum is headed by W. E. Watkins, president of the Mansfield Trades council. Other committee members are Lloyd Leaman, secretary of the Trades council; George Schneider, trustee of the council, and Clarence Fike, delegate of the engineers' organization. Watkins will preside at the meeting.

Speakers who will appear at the forum will be available for conferences next Wednesday at the Social Security office on the fourth floor of the Richland Trust building.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

HIS FACE WAS A SIGHT! MY SKIN IS SO ROUGH AND PIMPLY, DAD. CUTICURA IS JUST THE THING FOR THOSE EXTERNALLY CAUSED BLEMISHES. NOT LONG AFTER. GEE, MY FACE IS CLEARER ALREADY. CUTICURA SURE HELPED ME. AND DON'T FORGET! KEEP RIGHT ON USING CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT EVERY DAY TO HELP GUARD THAT GOOD-LOOKING COMPLEXION.

CHAPTER XXIV

Terry sat suddenly erect. "I've been trying to figure that one, Dad. I'd never dreamed you would have cleaned up that well on Farrabow—unless prices have gone up more than I thought they had."

"Well," she informed him seriously," land has been pretty hard to dispose of. Pop found that out. His taxes were worrying him a lot and he felt pretty blue about things . . ."

"I get you. Oil."

"Yes."

"I might have known. Dad—don't tell me they found any oil on our old place!"

"No, not that I know of. Some of the land your father had has been under lease and there's been some drilling there. But, as far as I know, no wells have been brought in."

"That's good! I would have been tempted to shoot myself. You were luckier, I take it."

"Yes. And I'm so glad Pop lived to know about it. They brought in a gusher on the first piece he leased and of course the oil companies snapped up everything that seemed to be in line with the field."

"Including Farrabow. I suppose you have a well in the front yard now—pumping gold."

"No. That was funny." Caradad wrinkled her nose "They did some drilling north of the bunk house, and drew a blank. But another company wanted the house and buildings for some sort of field office, or something Judge Pomphrette thought I'd better sell that one piece outright while I had the chance—cigaret money, he called it"

Terry swore softly under his breath. "Go on, Dad."

"Well, it's been quite an experience for me. You've no idea all the things I've had to learn—options, leases. I've had to act as though I knew what it was all about. But the judge has been a darling. I don't know what I'd have done without him."

"He always had the name of being a pretty smart old codger." Terry observed dryly. "I expect you've been better to him than his law practice."

"Oh, he still has time to hold court," Caradad explained. But I don't know what I ever would have done without him. And Auntie Pomphrette! She's been exactly like a mother to me. I told you, didn't I, that I'd been living there since I sold the old place?"

"You mentioned it."

"It's almost like home," Caradad resumed dreamily. "You've no idea, Terry."

"Maybe you haven't either—since that telegram.

"Oh, that will be all right."

"So I am engaged—temporarily—to a petroleum princess. Viewing it in that light, would it be impertinent if I were to ask what's she's worth. Approximately."

Caradad studied a moment. "Somewhere near three and three-quarter millions. It might be four by this time."

* * *

After Terry's seemingly grudging consent to let her have her way about the money, Caradad tried to dismiss the problem, and Terry himself—for the time being. He assured her that he had several days of grace. As a matter of fact, if he were to assure his principal creditor that a cash settlement was forthcoming, that would be the end of it. There was nothing to worry about now.

There shouldn't be—with Caradad Vardell backing him. A few further remarks satisfied him that she was in complete control of her own affairs and that, at the most, Judge Pomphrette's almost certain objections would be overruled. She was of age and the judge was no more than an agent and trusted legal adviser.

Before the two parted, it was arranged that Caradad would call Terry as soon as she heard from home—she saw to it, this time, that she was supplied with a telephone number—and that arrangements would be settled upon in the matter of turning over the needed funds to Terry. Hence, the next day, she was rather surprised to hear her telephone sound while she was making herself ready to go out for a late lunch. She was still more astonished to hear a harsh voice bark, "Is that you, Caradad?"

"Oh . . . why, Judge Pompey, where did you come from?"

"Never mind where. I'm here and I'm coming up to your room."

"Please do!"

When a sharp rap sounded on her door, Caradad threw it open breathlessly. A tall, thin man, wearing a slouch hat on the back of his grey head, stalked in.

"Now, don't go honeyfoggling me first thing," he cautioned, as Caradad threw both arms about his neck and drew his head down for a welcoming kiss. "It won't get you anything!"

"But I'm so glad! I didn't expect to see you!"

"I reckon you didn't. Let me sit down, will you? I'm still sort of locoed."

"Right there. Tell me . . . ." she asked excitedly, as Judge Pomphrette lowered himself wearily into an armchair and pushed his hat back farther from his forehead. "Did Auntie come with you?"

"No. There's one woman who hasn't gone crazy . . . yet."

"But how did you get here so quickly?" Caradad helped herself boldly to a perch on the arm of Judge Pomphrette's chair.

"Took a plane. I hate to admit it, but I did. I had to stop you before you made a fool of yourself — wanting all that money!"

"Did you bring it?"

"Well, sort of. And I'm going to hang on to it until I know what this is all about. Has young Cantine anything to do with it?"

"Sort of . . ." Caradad mimicked demurely.

"Hah! I figured as much." Pomphrette rubbed the stubble on his chin with an impatient gesture. "Well? Some trick investment, I dare say. He found out you had a few dollars and couldn't rest until he got his fingers on some of it. Have you been in the papers?"

"Not that I know of—not yet."

"Well, trust one of that breed to smell money. I've heard some things about that young fellow that I should have told you. I was all set to when you wrote and said you'd met up with him here. But it was Mama that talked me out of it—figured it wouldn't be polite, or something. Whatever it is, the answer is no—if I have anything to do with it."

"I'm afraid it's too late," Caradad replied soberly.

"What do you mean, too late? Didn't give the young fool your personal check, I hope! I'll try to stop payment!"

"No," she assured him. "I've not given him any money. And I'm afraid, Uncle Pompey, I can't let you speak that way about Terry."

"And why not?" Pomphrette bristled.

"Because he's the man I'm supposed to—well, we're engaged."

It was out now. On record.

The judge collapsed with a helpless grunt. He stared up into Caradad's face as if he could not grasp the import of her words.

* * *

She nodded silently. "Oh, it isn't as dreadful as that," she told him.

Judge Pompey reached mechanically for his plug of tobacco and fortified himself with a generous bite. "And this little piece of change is for your trousseau, I reckon," he offered, not without some difficulty.

"Well—you see, there's no date set and may not be for a long time. This is confidential, but I've about decided to invest a little money in Terry's business. No! He didn't suggest it—I did. In fact, I had a dreadful time getting him to consent. You've no idea how well he has done here. If he had a chance to expand a little . . ."

"That's his line, not yours!" the judge exploded angrily. "I recognize the Cantine brand. If I thought . . . See here, Caradad," Pomphrette spoke in a more subdued tone. "You've always been a level-headed girl. I won't pretend that I don't hate to see you throw yourself away on Cantine. To be perfectly candid, I hope he's lynched or something beforehand. But you're your own boss. You know that. Same as you know a mean horse can't rear when somebody has his upper lip in a twitch. That's me. I'm not going to act up—but you can't stop me from doing a hell of a lot of thinking. I want you to come clean with me, girl. If you want Cantine, I want you to have him—have anything in this world that will make you happy. But I want to get the low-down, sort of. Did you tell him that you had . . . a fair amount of money?"

"Yes."

"Give him any figures?"

"Roughly."

"Roughly! That's good." Pomphrette chuckled. "If I had a few millions, I'd speak of them mighty reverently. I reckon that's about the time he consented to be reasonable about letting you do a little investing in the business. Was it?"

"He didn't know at that time I had more than a few thousand I wanted to play with."

"How many thousand? Twenty-five, judging from your wire."

"Of course."

"Well, if he's as clever as I take him to be, he won't be long in finding out that your cash balance is acting like a thermometer in the sun. I'll bet you won't have to argue with him any more. And that's that. Now, here's another one."

(To Be Continued.)

No One Ever Kissed Her Good Night

Bad breath is death to romance. And bad breath is frequently caused by constipation. Just as headaches, sleeplessness, weakness can be produced by it, or most skin blemishes aggravated by it!

Dr. F. M. Edwards, during his years of practice, treated hundreds of women for constipation and frequently noted that relief sweetened the breath and improved well-being and vitality. For his treatment he used a purely vegetable compound—Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This laxative is gentle, yet peculiarly effective because it increases the bile flow without shocking the intestinal system.

Help guard against constipation. Use Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. At all druggists, 15¢, 30¢ and 60¢.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1938.

Some folks enjoy waiting in line—so they delay paying their taxes until the final day.

China has an advantage in being able to look a century ahead instead of being disturbed by tomorrow.

A big majority of the American people believe business will be improving soon. and this may be one of the cases where "thinking makes it so."

An Incomplete Investigation.

EXCEPT to increase public suspicion, nothing material has thus far been accomplished by the uncompleted grand jury investigation of the Ohio parole system.

When Attorney General Duffy was instructed by Governor Davey, several months ago, to carry through an investigation, it was naturally assumed that earlier revelations had been sufficient to justify such a probe, and it was also assumed that sufficient funds would be made available to carry it to completion.

After twelve days of special grand jury sessions in Richland county, there has been an indefinite recess, due to exhaustion of funds, and the whole procedure is apparently very much up in the air.

This is a matter in which the integrity of the state of Ohio, in its responsibility to render impartial justice, is involved. The stigma of influence or graft being suspected of playing any part in securing the release of favored inmates of penal institutions cannot be permitted to continue to rest on responsible officials.

If there was justification for starting this investigation there is even greater requirement that it be carried to completion—and the money needed should be provided without further delay.

Hourly or Yearly Pay.

THE American Iron and Steel Institute reports that payrolls of the steel industry in 1937 totalled $976,000,000, setting a new high record. It was 16 per cent above the 1929 payroll.

Employment in the industry set a new record, with 572,000 workers, a gain of 25 per cent over 1929's 458,000. Furthermore, the decline from the year's peak was less in employment and payrolls than in volume of steel produced. All this sounds very good for the workers, and it was—for those who were employed fairly steadily through most of the year. Average wages and hours for the months of November and December, however, show that the situation was not one of great prosperity for all.

In November average hourly pay for wage-earning employes was 82.1 cents and the average week was 27.6 hours. Weekly pay therefore averaged $22.65—more for some, less for others. In December the situation had changed a little. The average pay was 82.3 cents an hour and the week averaged 23.4 hours, dropping the weekly pay check to $19.25. For the men who received more than the average and who worked most of the year's 52 weeks, the annual income would be a little over $1,000. For their less fortunate fellow-workers it would be under $1,000. It is the yearly income that is really important.

When Memory Doesn't Work.

SEVERAL persons who had fully intended to attend a public meeting a few nights ago admitted afterward that they sat at home through the evening without once thinking of the meeting.

Memory seems to occasionally play a trick of that kind, unless it is carefully trained to retain impressions that are made on it.

Some persons find it necessary to make a note of all appointments, even of those only a few hours in advance, while others appear to have no difficulty in remembering appointments several weeks ahead.

It would probably be a good thing for every person to check up occasionally on the dependability of his memory, so that—if advisable—he could set an alarm clock to ring early in the evening when he planned to attend a meeting, thus reminding him that he should look in his date book to see what he intended to do.

The old idea of tying a string around the finger is obsolete—too many people forgot what the string was to remind them to remember.

Co-operation for Good Health.

THERE is natural opposition, among medical men and laymen, to "socialized medicine." But the term is confusing. There may be as many definitions as there are groups fearing or favoring the idea.

We already have a kind of social medicine in our public health departments, local and national. We have health work in the public schools. We have public hospitals and clinics and dispensaries, because it has been found that the health of the whole community depends on certain general control measures.

Huge sums are paid yearly, out of taxes, for the medical care of people who cannot meet the cost themselves. Yet a great section of the population still remains without needed medical care, including many individuals and families who are completely self-supporting when in health.

Beginnings have been made here and there to provide co-operative medical insurance, group purchase of the services of doctors, nurses and hospitals. None of these efforts and none of the public health work or the private charity services have come anywhere near meeting the known need.

The American Medical association has undertaken a study of the situation which some doctors think is too narrow in scope. They propose instead a study in which economists, sociologists and organizations representing the paying public would join physicians in solving the great health problem.

The public foots the bill in the end, through taxes, voluntary contributions to charity, direct payment for medical service, or through co-operative methods. It might as well find out how to get the best health value for its money, with just rewards to the medical profession.

An unhappy thought is to wonder what becomes of the racketeers after Dewey drives them out of New York.

Lessons From 'Little Business' Conference

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Little businessmen who attended the recent Washington conference of their commercial, industrial and financial ilk, undoubtedly all have been back home for several days now, and each must have told his individual story of the affair to other business folk in his own community.

There is no reason, therefore, for this column to try to go into details concerning it.

Nearly 1,000 of these chaps were present at the proceedings, and those who participated in them assuredly have interpreted them more competently, from the standpoint of their respective neighborhoods, than is possible for a central commentator to broadcast generally, from here in the capital.

* * *

WASHINGTON VIEW

However, a Washington observer may be able to draw some conclusions of his own concerning the reactions of the administration, and of senators and representatives, to the little businessmen's gathering.

New Dealers were not so much amused by that performance as one might gather from published reports of it.

Superficially it was killingly funny, to be sure.

In its very nature, the meeting was bound to be inclusive of a very high percentage of spokesmen with a great deal to say.

* * *

ALL DESIRE TO TALK

I do not mean to imply that little businessmen are any less well behaved than big ones, but they are more numerous.

A smallish roomful of the big classification can do a deal of "fixing." Perhaps they exchange plenty of mean remarks between themselves, but they do it compactly—not to the tune of a series of long-drawn-out speeches. Their disagreements, too, are "on the quiet." The big businessmen, themselves, don't care to have their quarrels advertised.

Some of the little businessmen (a minority but a considerable one) do want advertising.

Present at this last little businessmen's convention were 988 delegates, to be exact. Assume that 900 of them were orderly, peaceful, adjustable. But the remaining 88?

* * *

WHY THE GAG

Each of these 88 considered himself entitled to talk for at least two hours.

That was not practicable; so the other 900 hollered, "Throw him out!"—and out he was chucked—not necessarily that he wasn't talking sense but that he was tiresome.

It could not have been done in congress.

There a representative is entitled to at least 10 minutes; in the senate to as long as he can last.

* * *

YES—IT WAS MANAGED

The noisy little businessman, then, demanded congressional parliamentary tactics, and did not get 'em.

Either he was muzzled by the chairman or he was physically ejected.

He says, naturally, that the whole thing was cut-and-dried.

It was, indeed. The whole thing would be going yet, otherwise.

* * *

A MISTAKE?

The administration's problem is:

Wasn't it a mistake to inspire such a gathering?

It has assembled discontent, and, having done so, it has disseminated it.

* * *

ELEVEN WHO COUNT

There is this to be considered, nevertheless:

The rank-and-file of little businessmen were pooh-pooh'ed. But 11 of their chairmen were left, to negotiate with the administration.

Maybe the 11 chairmen will be so "stuck on themselves" AS chairmen, as to offset the rank-and-file

HELEN LESLIE OF FT. WORTH, TEXAS, BATTING FOR ELSIE

(Note—Said scads of fans—"We could write columns, maybe better than yours, if we had the chance." So we gave them a chance to make this unique clearing house for American thought and feeling. Here's one of the results—released to 50,000,000 readers. Tell us what you think of it.)

Let's Get Together!

(An unemployed worker addresses a Capitalist.)

LET'S get together, Mr. Capitalist! Why should there be this unbridgeable gulf between us? We are both human beings, and our physical needs and mental processes are fundamentally the same.

We may possess experience which you lack . . . you may have privileges of which we are deprived—but in the main issues of life we are one. We both must have food, shelter and clothing for our bodies . . . work, love, pride and recreation for our souls.

You hold dear the respect and admiration of your fellow men. So do I. And yet, you are wont to dismiss me and my kind as stupid, unreasonable, covetous creatures, envious of you and your possessions, incapable of feeling "the finer things of life."

If this, even in a measure, were true—though I protest it isn't—would you be any different if you stood in my shoes?

Could you endure constant hunger without rebellion . . . humiliation without anger . . . frustration without bitterness? If you can, you are not a man but a god.

But in your heart you know you're not a god. You're a man like myself. Then why appraise me so superficially? Look beyond my apparent distrust of your class, my ignorance and blunders, into my essential manhood, crying out for recognition.

* * *

(THE CAPITALIST SPEAKS TO THE UNEMPLOYED WORKER)

LISTEN, Forgotten Man! How little you know of my burden and your power over me! I am sorely perplexed and bewildered. I did not know what heavy obligations go with power.

You think you are oppressed—but what do you know of the tyranny of wealth and responsibility? You think I ignore and forget you . . . yet, paradoxical as it may seem, you are my constant concern . . . in office or drawing room, through every waking hour, I carry the burden of your problem.

I do not fear physical deprivations greatly, for I have never known them—but I do fear failure in meeting my obligations to the race. I cannot help but know that my failure would spell far greater suffering and demoralization, than would yours.

I pity you—yet I must uphold those things I have striven to obtain. I must serve society, as well as the individual worker. WILL YOU NOT BEAR WITH ME THEN, BROTHER . . . FOR I MUST COPE WITH FAR MORE SUBTLE AND FAR-FLUNG DEMANDS THAN YOU, AND CARRY EVEN A GREATER BURDEN?

MISS HELEN LESLIE,
805 West Baltimore,
Ft. Worth, Texas.

* * *

I DON'T know your reaction, stranger, but as for me, I have never read a more moving or intelligent or 100 per cent American plea for fair play between employer and employe. I'm not only grateful to this Leslie lady for having written it—I envy her! And if some Good Fairy could give me one wish today it would be this:

THAT EVERY LITTLE SHOPKEEPER OR GREAT MERCHANT PRINCE WHO READS THIS PLEA WOULD CLIP AND FRAME IT AND HANG IT IN HIS OFFICE OR SHOP. For I honestly believe it would do more to stop discord than all the sit-down strikes and riots and ghastly brawls which now blot our nation's record.

Will you take the lead in this, Mr. Ford? Or YOU, Mr. Martin? Or YOU, Bill Jones of Brown's Corners?

Keeping Step

The Stage Has Become a Forum.

—By LESLIE EICHEL

THE STAGE is supposed to be for entertainment. Yet the stage in New York today, and to a degree in other large centers, is a provocative forum.

It is not merely the federal theater, with its "living newspapers," nor the co-operative or community groups that touch upon sociological and political and economic problems, but the commercial stage as well.

Yet, in the clearest analysis, the true play is not a "discussion," but a dramatic entity. The dramatic entity can have woven in it with its theme a discussion of problems if the problems are a part of the story or help in the development of characters. Otherwise, in the strictest sense, we have no play, for we have no story development nor character development.

That is what the men who instruct in drama say.

* * *

YET—

Yet, in New York virtually a third of the stages have plays that resemble the debates of the past. They are discussion in dramatic and excited tones of the issues of the day.

The stage, more than the radio, or the halls of congress or the state legislature, has become our public forum.

But the instructors in drama may be correct. Debate is not a play however interesting, however better done than many and many a play.

Somerset Maughan, novelist and dramatist, said recently in a book of his published in his native England, that the play of ideas (for sociological or political purpose) could not survive because it would die when the idea was achieved.

That is true. But such a play, or stage discussion, can be a tremendous historical force in the development of a nation or a people.

* * *

PEOPLE ARE GROPING

Perhaps people are turning to the sociological-political play (as is the case in evolutionary times) largely because the "real" play is empty of thought, is hollow.

The great works or art HAVE had thought, have portrayed life. And, in portraying life, one portrays, too, the many facets of life, such as the sociological aspects and the political maneuverings and the economic battles. Shakespeare did right well at that. There's many a protest at conditions in his play. But drama was first. The canvas was life—and all that entered therein came after.

* * *

PERHAPS IN FANTASY?

The ancients had fables—stories that live to this day. ("Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" is one.) Perhaps the modern world desires its thought in fables, in fantasies.

The stage lacks beauty at the moment. It is harsh, strident, bitter, impudent and too often repulsive. It lacks art.

It will re-establish itself (both as to the spoken stage and the movies) when it restores the fable boldly and beautifully. The truths of the world, the never-changing truths, lie in the old fables. But truth must be restated again and again, in new forms, in new dress, to meet the changing outward appearances.

We guess that a fantasy will mark the renaissance of the stage, not the forum-plays of today. In the meantime, let us be thankful for those forum-plays. They, for the moment, lift the theater from the depths—and they play their part in history, even if they cannot live.

One of the greatest works of the New Deal has been the WPA's federal theater. Its "Living Newspaper" will be a subject for future historians.

The "Living Newspaper's" "One-third of a nation. . . . (an intensely dramatic summation of the tenement problem) is a masterpiece of deduction resolved to the simplest terms. Nothing else could better serve its purpose—except a talk by President Roosevelt. That is at once its strength and its weakness.

Timely Editorial

Satisfied Workers.

A study of thousands of employes in New York establishments has just been completed with particularly interesting results in one respect—workers above the age of 40 were found to be happier and more settled in their jobs than those below that age.

The inquiry was not made with any purpose of providing an argument for the employment of persons of middle age or beyond. The aim of it was to obtain light on "the causes of labor unrest." But the by-product of it has a direct bearing on the status of older workers in American industry. It contributes to facts already at hand—that these workers as a class are trustworthy, diligent and otherwise especially qualified for valuable service to employers.

The discrimination of which men of more advanced age frequently become victims is a short-sighted policy, even from a strictly business standpoint. It ought to be removed.—Kansas City Star.

Phone No Menace To Health, Doesn't Harbor Germs

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE IDEA of germs everywhere may lead an unduly timorous person to an attempted avoidance of all the many objects with which our manner of living brings us into contact. More rational people, drawing upon their experiences of general freedom from disease, realize that such an avoidance is futile and u necessary.

The telephone is an instrument that comes in pretty intimate contact with a large number of people in all walks of life and all states of health. Yet the fact is, that after the most painstaking investigations, the use of millions of telephones every day for tens of millions of conversations has not produced one authenticated case of disease transmission by the use of the telephone.

The question has engaged the attention of the medical profession, and of public health services here and abroad. All the telephone companies of Europe and the United States have repeatedly studied the question, and have sponsored investigation.

The use of devices to make the mouthpiece more sanitary has been advocated by a number of inventors, but the experience of all the companies has been that these interfere with the efficiency of the telephone without serving any useful purpose.

The most successful of the solutions used to try to sterilize the telephone transmitter are heralded to the user by a strong odor. This gives a sense of safety, but the best germicides are not necessarily the ones with the most medicinal odor.

Fortunate Fact.

It is a fortunate fact that most germs (and all viruses which cause so many human diseases, including the common cold) do not live on non-living surfaces. To keep them alive they must be in contact with living tissue, and human living tissue at that.

Columbia university, in New York, and the University of Chicago, concluded extensive bacteriological tests in our two largest cities. A bacteriologist went on rounds of a large number of telephones, preferably public 'phones, and wiped a sterile moistened swab over the mouthpiece. Then he made cultures from these swabs to see what kind of bacteria he had. In both cities harmless bacteria were found and a few types of disease-producing bacteria were found. In Chicago, no diphtheria, no tuberculosis and no pneumonia germs were found. In the New York study no diphtheria and no tuberculosis were found, but some pneumonia types were found in the winter and spring months.

In Chicago, studies were made to see how long pathogenic bacteria would live on the telephone transmitters. Ninety per cent of germs were read within one hour, and nearly all of them died within 15 mintues.

"Frankfurter."

"Whence the frankfurter? Why is it so-called?" inquires a reader.

Heaven alone knows the "whence" of many a frankfurter, that highly seasoned concoction of chopped mixed meats compressed into sheep's casing.

As to why it is so-called, that is another and a far simpler matter, for its etymological ingredients are an open book.

"Frankfurter" is a coined word, after Frankfurt, Germany. What we call the "frankfurter" was originally known as Frankfurt sausage.

Second Wind.

Just when you think you can't run another step, something happens. The pain in your side goes away, new strength comes to take its place, you feel as if you could run for hours.

You were ready to, but, and you would not quit, if you hadn't caugh your Second Wind—if that mysterious source of new strength hadn't been opened to you.

I don't know what that Second Wind is and no doctor has been able to explain it to me. They tell me it's your spleen that hurts when you run and the Greeks knew that, 22 centuries ago, and used to cut out the spleen in their distance runners so they wouldn't be troubled.

People who work at night have noticed that they pass through a period of fatigue and come suddenly into a period when they feel refreshed and keen and able to solve any problem and work untired for hours. There must be a Second Wind in the brain that is beyond our understanding.

Efficiency experts who have studied factory workers say that their period of greatest efficiency is NOT in the early morning hours when they are fresh and strong but late in the afternoon when they are more physically tired. Something in the nerves and body catches a Second Wind.

And sometimes we seem to have a Second Wind of the spirit. . . . We are weary and we doubt ourselves. We fear we will have to give up. We are sorry for ourselves and only Pride and Stubbornness keep us going. We say we don't care WHAT people think—there's a limit to human endurance and we've reached it.

But something happens. For no "good" reason suddenly we are cheerful again. We feel strong enough to make another try. The little things don't annoy us any more. The burden is no lighter but we are big enough to carry it. We do not know how it happened, but we know that it did happen and we are glad. We have caught our Second Wind at last and we are on our way again. Nobody knew how close we were to failure—and WE won't tell!

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

NO OTHER American novel has been kicked around so much as Theodore Dreiser's famous "Sister Carrie." Discovered by the late and talented Frank Norris when he was a reader in a Union Square publishing house, it came in as an "unsolicited manuscript."

He recommended its publication, but after it was in galley proofs some of the editorial board decided that the tale was strong meat and a letter was sent to Dreiser suggesting the publication be postponed a while until "business picked up."

Dreiser, however, insisted that the terms of the contract be carried out. He was informed that in that case the book would be brought out but never pushed. The first edition was only a slim 500 copies, after which the plates were broken up.

It might have died for all time had it not been brought out by a firm in England, where it was immediately acclaimed. It sells steadily today. The book has carried more publishers' imprints than any novel by a living contemporaneous writer. And deservedly.

At a dinner some years ago at the Bohemian club in San Francisco there were present Charles G. Norris, Henry L. Menchen, Samuel Hopkins Adams, Harry Leon Wilson, Stewart Edward White and Hugh Wiley. The discussion came around as to who should be given the palm of being America's outstanding living writer. The consensus was it was Dreiser. Europe, too, so regards him.

There are only one or two left of those romantic vagabonds of the mimeograph who gave such color to the theater 20 years ago. They blazed a trail for the productions of Klaw and Erlanger, the Shuberts, Ziegfeld and others and their annual visits to the high grass were red letter events, especially in the editorial shops. All were fabulous fellows, fond of a good story, fragrant cigars and perhaps a rye or so neat. The list included such names as A. Toxen Worm, Frank Wilstach, Pop Rosenthal, Frank Matthews, Jake Rosenthal, Walter Duggan, Frank Kane, Jay Barnes, Dex Fellows and Ryley Cooper.

Ludwig, the smiling happy crippled newsboy in his high chair at the Saks corner on 34th street, has brushed with adventure. One windy day a lace handkerchief fell in his lap, blown from who knows where! It was so sweetly perfumed Ludwig says he'll return it—assessed by a neighboring sales girl as worth at least $8—if the owner will give him just a tiny vial of the ravishing perfume, now almost sniffed away.

To many the subway excavations on Sixth avenue are caverns of civic horror. They are assailed by the clowns of the revues and the night clubs and targets for paragraphic pokes. Yet to me they are a constant delight. Such fascinating glimpses down in the shady bowels of the earth. Such maddening complications of tubes, twisting in an elaborate meshwork, electric conduits, rusty gas pipes and the bigger entrails of huge sewer pipes and water mains. The acetylene torch shooting blue white fire. The pyrotechnic display of sparks, the refractory steel dripping in red drops to a puddle, the boarding catching fire!

The excavation men like their work and glance at those peering down pityingly. Last night I watched a man nailing down the top layer of planks. He stuck in a dozen long wire nails like pins in a pin cushion and then, with the accuracy of Bobby Jones, drove them in one by one, with rythmic blows. Then the almost human motor shovel, biting out hugs gobs of earth and swinging it into the truck. There is a feeling here are men who do something really useful to everybody—men who are not merely matching pet words into something that is bound to die tomorrow in the manner of columnists.

Gelett Burgess has started a growing campaign against what he calls Zobzibs—those who stop to gossip in the middle of a busy sidewalk. The trick of destroyers is to crash into them heavily with an abject "Pardon, so sorry." Burgess is also an anarchist who likes to steal a smoke on the hind quarters of a bus to see how long before the chauffeur catches him in his tell-tale mirror.

A Farmer's Diary

Feb. 8.

I WALKED with my companion, away from the unsatisfying humdrum of the traveled road and we tramped across a sodden pasture into the fresh, strong current of the wind.

The landscape had no contrasts of color or light. Gray, scudding clouds; gray-black belts of trees; obscurity of all details; threat of rain very soon. The air smelled of it.

Then, suddenly, we descended into a little valley and there was music and infinite interest—inspiration and artistry. It was as though Nature had played a joke, or opened a secret chamber to a pair who dared venture forth on such a day.

A stream gurgled through the valley, making chuckling cascades of white foam between boulders. The water was clear and the creek bed, in the shallows, was covered by multi-colored stones—orange and rose and yellow; black and green and white. In the deeper pools under the roots of overhanging trees, the stream had that deep translucent green that comes in early spring. We broke the tangle of white balled willows and silvery purple briars and crossed upon stepping stones.

At a place where the valley opened to give a glimpse of a tiny grove—no more than a dozen trees—nestled between the grassy curving hill of a neighboring pasture, we sat for a while on a log. I tied my wife's shoe. Behind us the wind came over the bluff and tossed the bare treetops about, with a sound like castanets. At our feet sang the stream. Far up the hill a bird called—a single high note.

After a time we walked back to the highway. The roar of motor cars—the odor of tobacco smoke. To the passersby, we were merely a farmer and his wife, trudging along in muddy boots. But we had feasted upon beauty—and we were satisfied.

REVIEWS HISTORICAL NOVEL BEFORE CLUB

Mrs. G. J. Kochenderfer Reports on "Black Forest" at Tourist Meeting; Mrs. W. L. Parkinson Talks on "Fabrics."

A PAPER on fabrics and a book review were presented yesterday when members of the Tourist club met at the Women's Club with Mrs. B. W. Forkner as hostess. Mrs. W. L. Parkinson discussed "Modern Fabrics, Their Composition and Care" and Mrs. G. J. Kochenderfer reviewed "Black Forest" by Mead Minnigerode.

Mrs. Parkinson's paper offered a well-grounded discussion of fabrics from their inception through to the finished product. She discussed the making of the various synthetic fabrics as well as cottons, linens and silks. In the paper Mrs. Parkinson showed how the various fabrics are made.

The historical novel reviewed by Mrs. Kochenderfer concerns the northwest territory. The story opens in the early days of the territory just about the time of the passing of the ordinance of 1787. It depicts the history of the early days of Ohio and the settlement of Marietta. The lives of the French and English characters blend with that of the Indians and the characteristics of the land in the book so as to weave a colorful and picturesque background of the territory.

Current events were given by the members. The next meeting of the group will be Feb. 22 at the home of Mrs. C. C. Wadsworth. Mrs. Forkner and Mrs. Dimon Herring will appear on the program.

In her paper, Miss Beattie, who is a social worker in Cleveland, explained her principle of analyzing the emotions of people and of transferring this study to characters in books. She stated that she was always curious to know how they got that way, what problems confronted them, and what could be done about it whether she was studying living people or those who exist on the printed page.

By speaking of various books to illustrate her points, she showed how such emotions as fear, the need for social adjustment, and the mother complex are traceable. For illustration she spoke of "The Rains Come," by Louis Bromfield and indicated that this book shows how persons act when confronted by a catastrophe.

Should Wife Put Up With Drunkenness?

By VIRGINIA LEE

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE Tell me how a wife and mother can take a nonchalant attitude toward life and carry on with a husband who drinks and lies drunk for days at a time

"He has been drinking for years and uses money that is desperately needed in the home They have several children and a business that would at least make a fair living, but he is the type of a man who thinks when he works he is the only one who does, and when he is sober he fusses about light and water bills that are a necessity. But when he is using money for drink—that is different.

"The wife has tried to belong to clubs, but her nerves are so ragged she can't forget. The children are resenting his drinking. That is another problem for the mother, trying to keep the home peaceful and smooth running like a home should be.

"This wife is wondering if it is worth while to stay and try and hope he will quit. So many times he says he will, but it doesn't last. I read and enjoy your column and usually your answer is 'stay.' But really I wonder. Do people who don't know what a drunken man is, know what they miss, especially if a woman is sensitive and loves nice things? This wife doesn't expect the impossible She has gone without a lot of things and tried to help him. She really has stood by, but she is interested in her children's welfare. He never can spare a day with his family, but his drinking sprees are quite different!

Is It Worth It?

"Now, Virginia, I'm writing this, not because my friend asked me, but because it hurts me to stand by and see such a fine woman who doesn't deserve what she is getting. She has been a good sport through and through and lots of people can say so. She tries not to complain, she tries to smile and does through it all. She's trying to carry on for the children's and for her pride's sake, but I'm asking you, is it worth it? Is the family's future worth it?

"A CONSTANT READER."

It would seem that under such circumstances the wife should take the children and leave, for all their sakes but, then the practical problem arises, can she support the family, can the children help? If they can get along without the husband and father—who in this instance and according to your letter, is a decided liability instead of an asset—it might be better all around if she made a home for the children somewhere else.

And how will this fine, faithful wife react to leaving her husband? Will she, if she does leave him, later feel that he MIGHT have changed if she had stood by him? It amazes one to see the amount of punishment some loyal wives take because they love the man and think their place is by their side no matter what they do.

You and I, Constant Reader, may think the woman would be much wiser to leave and try to get along without the man who seems such a handicap to her and to the children She may, however, feel that she is her husband's keeper and be happier standing by and hoping than in leaving. I certainly think she has a right to take her children and leave the man—but we can't settle the matter for her, can we? It is for her to say She has my sincere and earnest admiration and sympathy whichever path she takes. Both are thorny.

Add one-fourth cup grated cheese, one-half teaspoon curry powder, one-fourth teaspoon minced onion and one-half teaspoon chopped parsley to one cup of cream sauce and use for serving with cooked rice, noodles, potatoes or macaroni.

A good fall dessert may be made of ice cream and chocolate sauce on top of baked chocolate waffles. Ice cream also may be used as a filling for two baked waffles and the combination covered with sauce.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

DEPENDENT ON FATE

SOME OF the most beautiful plays in the game, for which the declarer deserves utmost credit, could never have been made if he had been just a wee bit unlucky. A different lead which would destroy an important contact between his own hand and dummy, can sometimes prevent him from ever having a chance to show his brilliancy. It is up to him to seize the opportunities that do come his way, and not bemoan too much those which might have but didn't (Dealer South Neither side vulnerable).

Walter Beinecke, star of the Manhattan club team in New York's Inter-Club league was the South player on this deal. He and his partner reached a contract of 7-NO Trumps.

Against this, West led the diamond J Mr. Beinecke won this with the A and cashed the diamonds K and Q. After that he played his two high hearts and then started on the club suit. When he cashed the last club, which was the tenth trick West held J-9-8 of spades and the diamond 10 North A-K-7-5 of spades, East Q-10-6 of spades and the heart Q and South the spade 3, heart 10 diamond 5 and the club 2. The lead of the last club squeezed both opponents for if each one let go a spade, North's remaining spades would have been good If West tossed the diamond 10, South's diamond 5 would have been true if East let the heart Q go, as that would have set up South's heart 10

It so happens that if West had elected to lead a spade on the opening round the squeeze would have been impossible.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

The anxiety in Dicky's voice as he asked me if there had been any decision about going to New York before the day was over rasped my already frayed nerves almost to the snapping point.

Why was he so determined to have me in New York without any delay, and what was the reason for his assertion that he wanted me at hand so that he could get hold of me in a few minutes time?

These were the questions which I kept myself from uttering only by a tremendous exercise of willpower. For the fraction of a second, indeed, I made Dicky no answer at all, unwittingly imitating him by my silence.

"What's eating you?" he demanded. "Afraid to spill me the lowdown. Did Mother raise hell? You must have rubbed her the wrong way, if she did, because when she left me she was as mild as a nice mooly cow in clover."

Restrains Anger.

I swallowed an angry retort, principally because I was too tired to quarrel

"She still is," I said

'Well! what does that mean?" he demanded "Did she agree to Mary's going?'

'She did" I replied laconically "Mary and I are starting sometime this afternoon in my car. Miss Whitlock wishes Mary to stay in bed all this forenoon and I am going to rest a while myself. If you will telephone the Lansfield, telling them that Mrs. Veritzen and her aunt will be there this afternoon, that is everything I will need of you. Jim will load the car for us. You can go on to the city at any minute you desire. And—is there anything else you want to ask me before you go?"

He shot a surprised look at me.

"Why all the high hat?" he queried

I smothered a yawn with ostentation.

"I'm realy terribly tired and sleepy," I said. "I simply must have a nap before I see to Mary's packing."

Denies Her Anger.

"Oh! you and your packing!" he sneered Then an odd, speculative look leaped into his eyes.

"You're not sore about anything, by any chance?" he queried of me.

I widened my eyes into a surprised stare.

"Why should I be sore?" I countered.

He grinned feebly.

"You don't need a reason, usually," he said. "But I'm glad you're not. Go on and take your nap."

"Are you planning to go right away?" I asked.

"Is that a wish or a question?" he countered.

"A question," I replied.

"Then the answer is 'no'," he said gibingly. "I shouldn't think of going without bidding you a long and affectionate farewell, and you're too sleepy and cranky for even a kiss on the tips of your fingers, continental style. So long! Sleep tight!"

Unable to Sleep.

He threw me a mocking grin and went out of the room as quietly as he had entered, closing the door noiselessly behind him. But though I was as fatigued as ever, his irritation and subsequent gibing had effectually banished sleep. I lay quietly resting, trying every device possible to induce sleep, but so unsuccessfully that I was glad when Miss Whitlock tapped on my door, coming inside at my summons.

"My patient is straining at the leash," she said, smiling. "I think she's sufficiently rested now, so that she can go over that list of her belongings with you. But," she shot a keen glance at me, "what about you? Have you had any real rest?"

'Plenty," I told her with decision. "Please tell Mary I'll be with her for the job in 15 minutes or less."

I was as good as my word. I dashed cold water on my face until I felt refreshed, combed my hair, put my shoes and dress on again and, taking the memorandum book containing Mary's list of belongings, I went down the hall to her room, wondering if she were going to be temperamental or calmly sensible about her packing.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, February 10.

Matters of most surprising and unexpected significance will be suddenly precipitated, according to the lunar and mutual aspects. A rather radical influence is at work; it may have a vital effect on the future. Strange adventures and persons may figure in this, with elements of the hidden and obscure all making for fulfillments of high ambitions of a possibly startling nature. In all, superiors or those in power may assist.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a very important year, with many surprising and quite unforeseen matters suddenly culminating. These may involve change, travel, adventure or romance. Strange as well as secret influences may figure in this. It is a time for venturing forth daringly because the judgment is sound and ideas are constructive, even though novel or ingenious

A child born on this day may have a versatile and probably peculiarly-talented mind. It may be sound in judgment but original, inventive, adventurous and romantic. Its genius will probably lead it to high and distant places in search of thrilling destiny. It may also be pleasure-loving and popular socially.

THEATER

A TRIP such as any boy might dream of is in store for the Mauck twins if they can get their mother's consent. Errol Flynn has invited them to go with him on his six weeks cruise of the Caribbean, on his natty yacht, with no women within gun shot . . . Virginia Cherrill, the movie pretty who divorced Cary Grant and married the Earl of Jersey, brought her titled husband to Hollywood to show the guys. . . Dorothy Lamour has been so definitely labeled for South Sea roles, it is doubtful if she can ever get away from them After "Jungle Princess," she did "The Hurricane"; she has just completed "Her Jungle Love" for Paramount and is ready to make "Tropic Holiday" . . . .

Pursues Her Man.

"Wise Girl," opening at the Ohio Thursday, gives Miriam Hopkins another opportunity to pursue her man through several reels of film and misunderstandings. The fight is on when Ray Milland, penniless artist, tries to keep his two orphaned nieces against the offers of their wealthy grandfather and aunt Miss Hopkins, as Susan Fletcher, leaves three Russian princes waiting while she goes to the fray with Milland. Two new children who make their debut as the nieces are Betty Philson and Marianna Strebly. The action and romance romp through the Bohemia of Greenwich Village and the city prison before it is satisfactorily settled. Today is the final showing at the Ohio of "Stage Door," one of the better pictures of the year.

Fun in Pretending.

The fun a rich man has in playing pool and a poor man in playing a rich man is the gist of "Paradise For Three," which the Madison presents for the last half of the week, starting tomorrow The title refers to three men who went to the Alps for a vacation; Frank Morgan as a millionaire posing as his butler, Reginald Owen peer of all English butlers exchanging places with his master and assuming power and wealth; and Robert Young who comes to the mountains and is mistaken for someone else. Romantic interest is provided by the advent into this paradise of Florence Rice and Mary Astor. Tonight the theater is given over to the stage presentation, "You Can't Take It With You"

Shooting Stars.

In "A Star Is Born," one of the two features at the Majestic, a tragic contrast is made between a star on the upward swing and one on the down grade. Janet Gaynor plays the star who is made, while Fredric March is seen as the great star who is in his decendancy. All of the sycophants in Hollywood flock to the new star and take a vicious kick at the old star. To make the story more poignant, they are married to each other. "A Star Is Born" is all in color and one of the big films of recent years. The second feature is "City Girl," a story of rackets and murders, with Phyllis Brooks and Ricardo Cortez

Musical Comedy.

A musical comedy set against the background of the Pennsylvania oil fields in the days of the discovery of oil is filmed in "High, Wide and Handsome" which brings Irene Dunne, Randolph Scott and Dorothy Lamour to the Ritz Miss Dunne plays a carnival singer of the 1859's, with curls and wide skirts, who marries one of the farmers who find oil on their farm lands A battle between the oil men and the railroads leads to open fighting and a dramatic climax in which the roustabouts of the carnival come to the rescue of their old friends Mary Boland and Ernest Truex in a comedy, "Mama Runs Wild," rounds out the bill

Today's Recipes.

SCALLOPED OYSTERS — One quart oysters, crumbled crackers, one-fourth cup butter, one-fourth cup flour, one and one-half cups milk, one-half to one cup oyster liquor. Pick over oysters carefully. Strain liquor through a fine strainer, saving it for use later. Make a white sauce by melting butter, blend in flour and stir in milk slowly. When thickened and smooth, add oyster liquor, stirring it in slowly, also. Season mixture well. Sprinkle sides and bottom of greased baking dish with crumbled crackers (do not use fine crumbs). Make the bottom layer of the crackers about one-third or one-half inch thick. Over it put a layer of oysters, using one-half sauce, add another layer of crumbled crackers, cover with remaining oysters, add remaining sauce and cover it with coarse cracker crumbs Dot over the top with bits of butter. Bake in a moderately hot oven, 375 degrees Fahrenheit, until heated through and browned on top, from 20 to 30 minutes This amount serves eight.

One-fourth cup of bread crumbs and 2 tablespoons of water added to each pound of meat when preparing hamburg steak makes a much lighter mixture For seasoning use 1 teaspoon of salt, ¼ teaspoon of pepper and ½ teaspoon of onion juice to each pound of meat.

Coffee for Demi-Tasse

Every year Americans consume about 1,750,000,000 pounds of coffee, almost half of the total consumption of the world.

Though coffee has long been a "must" at the breakfast table, it is also popular for other occasions Many hostesses serve it at luncheon or in the late afternoon, and the recent influx of Puerto Rican coffee is bringing the demi-tasse into its own.

For years the exotic Puerto Rican coffee has climaxed festive dinners abroad Like the family jewels it comes out at night. It is distinct from standard daytime coffee in that it has a full-bodied bouquet.

As with rare and unusual foods, there are strict rules for its preparation and enjoyment. It should be brewed in a pre-heated drip pot. One cup of coffee to four cups of water will supply demi-tasses for eight people. The fresh boiling water should be poured over the coffee in the upper compartment and allowed to drip through for 12 minutes

Suggested only for after dinner. Puerto Rican coffee should always be served in a demi-tasse.

Save all meat skewers for spring house cleaning time They are excellent for cleaning corners and gloves in woodwork.

Before cooking liver pour boiling water over it and allow it to stand for 15 or 20 minutes until blood in liver congeals.

BARES STORY ON COMMUNISM

A. F. of L. Leader to Inform Senate Committee of CIO Director's 'Background.'

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Joseph P. Ryan, president of the A. F. of L.'s International Longshoremen's association, testifies before the senate commerce committee today on the character, history and political affiliations of Harry Bridges, Australian born, a CIO director, and a leader of maritime labor on the Pacific coast.

Ryan, testifying voluntarily, will allege that Bridges is a communist and an undesirable alien. He and Bridges are personal enemies.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, D. N.Y., chairman of the committee, who has been directing its investigation of labor conditions in the maritime industry, announced that Bridges would not be given an opportunity to testify or answer charges made against him before the committee.

"This is an American committee considering the American merchant marine," Copeland said. "We've no place for aliens. There is nothing that Mr. Bridges could tell us that we do not already know."

Copeland already has expressed the hope that Bridges would be deported and announced that all evidence indicates that he "is a communist." Describing him as a "disturbing element" in the merchant marine, Copeland said that "it would be a blesing if he were deported and I hope and believe that he will be."

Bridges has steadfastly denied all charges of membership in the communist party.

It was believed that a bill introduced by Sen. William H. King, D., Utah, seeking repeal of the neutrality act would die in the foreign relations committee. Bone said that he would offer as a substitute for King's measure, in event it reaches the senate floor, a bill to strengthen provisions of the neutrality act.

Bone's bill would provide that the transportation of supplies to belligerents be done on a "cash and carry" basis and prohibit transportation of arms and ammunition to belligerents in American vessels.

'Bad Girls' on Trial For Life

Genevieve Owens . . . waited for getaway

Ethel Sohl . . . she did shooting

Two young girls, Mrs. Ethel Sohl, 20, and Genevieve Owens, 17, who had the "gangster complex" and climaxed a short crime career by slaying a bus driver for $2.10 last December, now fight for their lives, charged with first degree murder, in a Newark, N. J., court. According to their reputed confessions, Mrs. Sohl shot the bus driver while Miss Owens sat in a stolen car and waited for the getaway.
